Asks Israel, Egypt To Avoid Actions Enlarging Strife

U.S. Calls on Two Countries To Heed Cease-Fire Resolution

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—The United States has urged Israel and Egypt to avoid any actions which might enlarge the Palestine fighting, the State Department announced tonight.

Both countries also were urged to comply with the United Nations' cease-fire resolution and to open prompt negotiations for a permanent armistice.

Today assurances were received from the Israeli Government that Israeli troops which crossed the Egyptian border last week now have been withdrawn. Israel said also the forces did not cross with the intention of occupying Egyptian territory.

CAIRO, Jan. 4 (CP).— An Egyptian spokesman said tonight that the Jews opened up attacks all along the Southern Palestine front at midnight Monday and that fighting continues.

He said the Jewish offensive was directed against Egyptian advanced positions in the direction of Rafa, close to the Egyptian frontier.

The spokesman added that Egyptian land forces had halted the Jewish plan and that Egyptian aircraft destroyed one of the 45 Jewish armored cars in the offensive.

Meanwhile the Egyptian Government announced today that it would accept the United Nations Security Council's order of December 29 for another cease-fire in Southern Palestine if the Jews issue a like order first.

Israeli Expect U.K. Move

TEL AVIV, Jan. 4 (CP).—An Israeli foreign office spokesman said tonight he believes British military forces may intervene in the Israeli-Arab warfare.

He said the basis for his belief are these reports received by the Israelis:

1. British troops are on their way towards the Trans-Jordanian port town of Aqaba, at the head of the Gulf of Aqaba.

2. Recent manoeuvres by British troops in Tripolitania were designed to simulate territorial conditions which would prevail in a landing on Israeli soil.

3. Britain has plans contemplating dispatch of troops toward the Egyptian-Palestine frontier.

Communist Radio Rebuffs China's 'Peace Offensive'

SHANGHAI, Jan. 4 (CP).—The Chinese Government's "peace offensive" was rebuffed tonight in a Chinese Communist broadcast terming it "nothing but a blunder".

From the Government side came a ring claimer for a truce and a negotiated settlement. But the Communists, who have been winning the civil war, indicated they would harp no part in it.

The Communist radio, monitored here, said that Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek had claimed that his Nationalist forces were ten to 20 times stronger than the Communists. The broadcast quoted the Communist New China News Agency as saying the Communists have 3,000,000 men under arms and nothing but five million rifles could have an army of 40,000,000.

Rankling reported growing anxiety among Chinese. Neutral observers in the Nationalist capital predicted that the Communists would demand that the Government armies lay down their arms.

A usually-informed source in Nanking said Government plans stopped short of surrender. Communist lines urging the Red soldiery to quit fighting as peace talks could begin.

LITTLE FIGHTING

There was little fighting anywhere. Communist radio said that Communist artillery was moving into the suburbs of besieged Peiping and Tientsin in the North. On the central front it asserted that whole battalions of the long-encircled Suchow garrison were surrendering.

The official Central News Agency said Peiping Communist and other representatives of 28 provinces and cities had sent appeals to Communist Leader Mao Tse-Tung to order a cease-fire and open peace talks.

Board to Rule Future Boosts In Bed Rates

Hon. George S. Pearson, British Columbia Minister of Health, yesterday announced that British Columbia hospitals may no longer raise their bed rates without approval of the Government's Hospital Commission.

The announcement followed a series of week-end increases in large hospitals in Victoria and the Lower Mainland.

Mr. Pearson said he has sent telegrams to every hospital in the province advising them of the ruling.

"We told them they must not alter their rates without our approval," the minister said.

New Year Storm Hits South Ontario

—CP Photo

Southern Ontario is digging out from one of the worst New Year's storms in many years. Traffic was paralyzed in most parts of the Province over the week-end and secondary roads were still blocked Monday. Even now ploughs found the drifts too much to battle in Toronto's suburbs. This photo shows a road in Etobicoke Township which stalled two ploughs and a grader attempting to free a bus and four automobiles. A third plough and another grader were necessary to clear the road.

Municipal Emancipation--Wassail!

Editorial

GREATER Victoria municipal councils began the new year in a splurge of enthusiasm over civic administration and development, that suggests they may be bestirring themselves at last.

If this new-found zeal doesn't wane with the passing months — as it has done so often in other years — Victoria should see a lot of long overdue improvements carried out, or at least started, before another inauguration day comes around.

The true amalgamation was left off the wists and objects of all four 1948 councils, a measure which, while perhaps not a panacea for all ills would certainly cure many of municipal headaches, but one must presume that eventually the wisdom of suburbanizing parochialism for the common good will sink into even the densest mind.

The Daily Colonist welcomes the promise of a "definite policy" on replacement of the Point Ellice Bridge, a long overdue reform if Victoria traffic is not to be held indefinitely at a snail's gallop; some systematic attention to traffic hazards in school zones; improvement of the Belleville Street embankment, and more vigorous attention to fire prevention. This newspaper has spoken long and loudly on three and similar topics. It regrets the list stopped there, however.

Alderman Kent had the courage of his convictions when he proposed that the City should decide to stop meddling posterity with debs and try to pay as we go ways in future. He put his finger, albeit in mild be unpopular, right in the middle of the financial pie when he turned up the last bit of under-assessment, which no doubt many would prefer to leave out of sight beneath the pastry covering of mill rates. He was right, of course. Most older properties' holdings in Victoria, and in outlying municipalities as well, are hardly under-assessed, and therein lies the true tale of the mill rate structure.

His advocacy of the city manager plan has also a great deal to recommend it. While the new clearance committee has been in action only a short time, it is apparent this device will not be an effective substitute for a "managing-director" able to give continuity and competent supervision to civic affairs. Sooner or later, and the sooner the better, serious study will have to be given to the appointment of some such official. Aldermen will have to relinquish some of their prerogatives for the betterment of civic administration in general.

LITTLE FIGHTING

Mayor George suggested a few traffic control improvements that appear to have merit. But it would not seem to have penetrated City Council consciousness that traffic ailments can be cured only by drastic medicine and surgery. Occasional anesthetics, when indigestion becomes acute, fail to remove the cause.

Any motorist can tell the council that Victoria traffic is nothing but a mess.

Much of the blame goes to lack of planning and foresight in the past, but that does not excuse inaction now or in the future.

The Mayor suggests expropriation of property to remove hazards at the Broad Street entrance to the fire hall. This is a bold plan, but the Mayor could have gone much further. He could have suggested a comprehensive scheme for improvement of conditions on all downtown areas west of Douglas instead of the removal of just one bottleneck.

Nothing was said about the chaos and confusion that already exists at the Fort and Broad Streets intersection where the line jog throws traffic into a melee. That could be unsnarled by closing the section of Broad Street between Fort and Yates and bringing to all vehicular traffic and turning it into another Trounce Alley, with the attractive prospect that it might develop into a fashionable shopping arcade. There might be a brief outcry about public rights of way, but other and larger cities in the world have found it necessary to take similar action. And short cuts through the Pemberton Building no other solution seems to present itself.

Nothing has been said about the rabbit warren of streets and lanes west of Government Street. The situation there is intolerable. It can be corrected only by a well planned system of one-way streets, clearly indicated to remove the confusion that now exists.

Nothing was said about installing better controls at Oak Bay Junction, where four streams of traffic now come to a halt at four stop signs and eye one another in indecision, each hesitating to make the next move.

Nor was mention made of the everlasting tangle at the Fountain. The council has been offered one solution of that problem by Washington State engineers, but if it proposes to take any action the public has yet to be informed.

The lack of by-law control over multiple traffic arcs apparently continues to be overlooked also, despite the fact that operation of more than one trailer is an offence on any provincial highway. Does the council not realize that there is no ordinance to prevent a haulage contractor hooking half a dozen large freight trailers onto a truck and snaking them through the main streets?

* * *

The Memorial Arena is to be finished. One suppresses the desire to say it had better be. Victoria citizens having grown tired of Holmes' elusive Removal of the waterworks "dump" in a section that is now almost downtown, is another commendable thought. So is the idea that vacant city lots might sell better if they are serviced with sewers and water. More low-rental houses, if built on suitable sites, are needed and would help to relieve housing pressure.

* * *

Saanich Council appears to have recognized that sewerage and drainage facilities are its main problem for the coming year—something that might have been foreseen long ago in a municipality that has doubled its population in the last 15 years.

Still clinging to the outmoded ward system, the council has now decided to remove may shortcircuit the council table and take their seats as citizens directly to the municipal engineer. This should ensure for him a happy and carefree existence from now on.

Conflicting opinions about the Gordon Head airpark site offer little hope of anything approaching agreement on that issue in the near future.

Saanich, however, is wise in realizing that length of meeting is not the main criterion and that at one o'clock in the morning decisions are apt to grow slightly muddled. A more expeditious treatment of municipal business will not hurt the municipality in the slightest.

* * *

For its part, Esquimalt, the orphan of the Federal Government, apparently is preparing for an active year in public works—without benefit of the financial assistance that continues to be unfairly withheld by Ottawa.

* * *

Oak Bay, fortress of dignity and decorum, must have been shocked to hear from Reeve Wootton that street adherence to the rules in council should be thrown to the winds in the interests of speedy handling of public business. That does not sound like Oak Bay, but no municipal taxpayer is likely to object if it makes for efficiency.

The council also was told that there are nocturnal goings-on in Oak Bay parks—something the police council about have known for years. Its proposals to curb loitering and bottle smashing will have the support of residents, at least.

* * *

All in all, however, there was a gratifying realism about the initial municipal council meetings of 1949. Let that spirit of progress be transmuted from words into action and brighter days may be ahead for Greater Victoria. This newspaper, for one, is pleased when vigor replaces vacillation, and talk becomes the precursor of concrete municipal endeavor.

Raging Blizzard in U.S. Maroons 8,000 Persons On Railroads, Highways

Wintry Scene Part of Picture Including Twisters, Fruit-Freeze

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (CP).— An estimated 8,000 persons were marooned tonight by a raging mid-continent blizzard. The blizzard highlighted a weather picture in the United States that included tornadoes in the South and killing freezes in the California-Arizona citrus belts.

Midwest headquarters of the American Red Cross estimated that 2,000 are stranded by snow in Southern Wyoming, Northeastern Colorado and Western Nebraska.

A United States Army troop train was marooned at Potter, Neb. Its commander reported to Lowry field at Denver that he has sufficient food to last until Wednesday night.

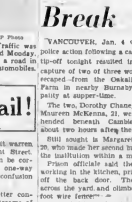

At least 18 persons were killed and more than 300 injured in tornadoes that ripped across sections of Louisiana and Mississippi on Monday.

The California freeze, worst in 25 years, threatened the rich orange and lemon crop with heavy damage.

KILLS LIVESTOCK

The blizzard, whipped by winds of gale velocity, also killed livestock and halted some industrial operations. Old-timers in South Dakota called it the "worst storm" they had ever seen.

Blizzard conditions also continued from Oakdale in 12 years on December 2 when they slipped through an unlocked door.

"Evidence"

Trains operating north and east of Denver and east and west of Cheyenne, Wyo., were ordered to remain in yards or on sidetracks.

Snow piled up to a depth of 37 inches in Chadron, Neb., and still was falling. The Alliance (Neb.) Times-Herald, a semi-weekly newspaper, gave up publishing today because its workers were snowbound.

The California chill sent the mercury shooting to an all-time low of 21 F in Los Angeles and to 18 degrees in the $100,000,000 citrus belt.

Growers kept their orchard heaters going at such a blast that a pall of black oil smoke hung over Los Angeles.

Tip-Off Halts Break

VANCOUVER, Jan. 4 (CP).—Fast police action following a cab-driver's tip-off tonight resulted in the recapture of two of three women who escaped from the Oakalla Prison Farm in nearby Burnaby municipality at supper-time.

The two, Dorothy Chaney, 26, and Maureen McKenna, 21, were apprehended beneath Camble Bridge about two hours after their escape.

Still sought is Margaret McNeil, 20, who made her getaway from the institution within a month.

Prison officials said the women, working in the kitchen, pried a box off the back door. The walked across the yard and climbed a six-foot wire fence.

A taxi-driver, hearing of the break, phoned police and said he took two girls answering police description to a spot below the bridge where officers picked them up.

FIRE IN 17 YEARS

Miss McNeil and two companions engineered the first female break from Oakalla in 12 years on December 2 when they slipped through an unlocked door.

Seven Killed In Crash Of Aircraft

COLFAX, Calif., Jan. 4 (AP).—A United States Air Force C-47 transport plane based at Ogden, Utah, crashed and burned in the snow-covered Sierra foothills tonight, Sheriff's deputies reported finding seven dead.

There were no reports of survivors.

The crash occurred about ten miles southeast of Colfax—roughly 150 miles northeast of San Francisco.

Residents of the community of Weimar said they heard what apparently was an explosion before the ship crashed in flames.

Deny Claim Airlift Coal Shifted to Black Market

BERLIN, Jan. 4 (AP).—The Russian-licensed newspaper National Zeitung today accused Britain and United States officers of shunting the bulk of the tons of airlift coal into the black market of the western Berlin.

Anglo-American officials promptly reported "Nonsense" and "poppycock."

The German newspaper charged a black-market gang is peddling "huge" quantities of coal, and that British and American officers "manage" things for the gang at the Gatow and Tempelhof airfields.

The National Zeitung said three officers, one of them a colonel, have been arrested and "further arrests are expected."

Anglo-American officials flatly denied such a gang exists. Col. Frank L. Howley, United States commandant, called the story "a load of poppycock." A British spokesman, who said he spoke for American and British officials, called it "nonsense."

Mr. Britton said the airlift's coal less is only 1.5 per cent.

Documents which the Hungarian Government said had been found in the home of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty were made public yesterday. They concern the historic crown of St. Stephen, and an alleged memorandum of the Cardinal's concerning land reform. Cardinal Mindszenty was arrested nine days ago on suspicion of plotting against the Communist setup, treason and black market money dealings. The above picture was taken at Ottawa, where the Cardinal attended last Summer's Marian Congress.

"This is general wastage," he said, "German police said the sale of airlift coal on the black market or coal from any other source is negligible."

BULLETINS

Floods Spread

ROME, Jan. 5 (Wednesday) (AP).—Floods forced more than 1,000 residents to move out of the valleys north of Florence today.

Near Target

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).— British airliners missed target destination target by less than 3,000,000 feet, The Ministry of Fuel announced tonight.

Netherlands' Cease-Fire Extended to Sumatra

BATAVIA, Java, Jan. 5 (Wednesday) (AP).—The Dutch Army ordered a cease-fire on the Island of Sumatra at noon local time today.

An order of the day from Lt.-Gen. Simon Spoor, Dutch commander-in-chief in Indonesia, said that after noon the task of his men would "be confined to action against roaming groups and gangs or individuals who try to cause disturbances."

The order used the same terms as that issued by Spoor January 2, to announce that hostilities on Java had ended formally at midnight, New Year's Eve.

The order came after the Chinese newspaper Sin Po had reported that the Republicans had remained in "guerrilla government for Java" which directs their fight against The Netherlands by radio.

A Netherlands Army press statement, however, said the Republican plans for a "general uprising" to start New Year's Day against Netherlands forces "ran to nothing." It said there have been no more incidents "than usual."

Amsterdam reported Prime Minister William Drees of The Netherlands left today by air for Batavia to fulfill there new peripheral objectives.

1. Formation of an Indonesian interim government which will be the representative of the whole of Indonesia.

2. Preparation for formation at this capital of a United States of Indonesia to which we will be able to transfer sovereignty."

Drees said his Government "always had tried to promote perfect understanding between the authorities in The Hague and in Batavia by personal contact."

The Pakistan Government announced today it has decided to participate in a conference of Asian countries called by India to consider the Indonesian question.

Defence Minister John Dedman of Australia said in Canberra that the proposed conference "does not contravene any principles laid down in the United Nations charter," and he knows of no British or American opposition to the meeting.

One possible objective of the meeting is to shut off rice supplies to Netherlands-held areas in Indonesia.

On Eve of First Defence Alliance Canada Plans Big Armament Scheme

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—On the eve of her first defence alliance, Canada is embarking on an armaments program that will equip her three small regular forces with new air and sea craft whose cost will run to tower into millions of dollars.

A definite and concerted program, marking the first postwar splurge on military equipment, has been shaping up here over the past few months.

Its full financial impact won't crystallize for the Federal budget this coming fiscal year by any means, but it period. will eventually embrace indefinite of the new craft really begins to air force, a new type of surface, navy and army.

The craft and a fighter plane for the Canadian Army are among the items now a transport plane to guarantee the mobility of the army's airborne brigade.

There has been no indication that armament program emerges publicly from the discussions that are expected to produce an Atlantic security pact this year, but it will certainly strengthen Canada's hand as a participant. It also promises eventual strength has been given, not only that defence costs will be up again this year but that they will stay high for some indefinite

It will be 1950 before production ... The first ... [illegible] ... has been no official estimate of the total cost.

Nothing has been said about the type of aircraft Canada will acquire but it is expected only by a well planned system of one-way streets, clearly indicated to remove the confusion that now exists.

Defence Minister Claxton said recently it should begin training as a formations some time this year but that may be a bit optimistic if the entire formation is included.

The Fairchild is the second United States plane that is slated for production in Canadian aircraft factories as a result of negotiations carried on by Trans-Canada Airlines. The first is the F86, world's fastest jet plane.

The packet plane has been out at least two years and is widely used by the Americans as a troop transport. It has two engines of 2,100 horsepower apiece, looks like a flying box-car, can carry a load of 11 tons, cruises at 200 miles an hour, and has a range of 4,000 miles, considered excellent.

It opens at both ends to receive its cargo which can include things as big as a truck.

Truman Likely to Touch On Military Help Plans

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (CP).—President Truman tomorrow will deliver to Congress his annual message on the State of the Union. In it he may touch on plans for military aid to countries in the front line of democracy's "cold war" with Russia.

The message, to be read personally by the President to a joint session of the two Houses of Congress, will deal chiefly with domestic affairs, but in view of the seriousness of the world outlook almost certainly will make some reference to foreign affairs.

It is unlikely, however, that Truman will go into detail about the Atlantic pact talks the United States must do in the matter of military aid. Observers predict he will merely say that progress is being made in the negotiations.

What he wants at this stage is authority from the Democratic-controlled 81st Congress to send military equipment wherever it may be needed to stem the tide of Communist expansion.

Top priority, of course, will go to Britain, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg—the Brussels-Treaty countries. Together with the United States and Canada, they are drafting an Atlantic defence alliance designed to strengthen the shaky peace and to guarantee democratic solidarity in the event of war.

Highs and Lows Of the Weather

Canada undoubtedly will have a vital role in any military aid program arising from Truman's appeal, The Canadian Informant sources say, would manufacture a large part of the equipment recipient countries needed from the United States.

And with United States dollars obtained in this way, Canada would speed arms aid to Britain as a member of the anti-Communist bloc.

By not naming particular countries in his State-of-the-Union speech, the President will have the way open for shipment of arms to Latin America and Scandinavia if the need should arise.

Seven Provinces Win on One Point In Advance of Freight Rate Fight

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—Seven provinces opposing railway freight-rate increases today won a preliminary skirmish in advance of the main battle over a new 20 per cent rate hoist.

They gained from the Board of Transport Commissioners an order compelling the Canadian Pacific Railway to furnish certain financial information for the case. The C.P.R. opposed the move.

Acceding to the provincial request, the board instructed the C.P.R. to furnish balance sheets and profit and loss statements for all of its subsidiary and ancillary companies for the years 1939 and 1947.

The material was to be supplied in the next 15 days, though the railway was given the right to apply for an extension of time if it could not provide the information in that period.

On January 11 the main bout over the railways' proposed new increase is to open before the board.

Evidence is scheduled to begin then on an application for an interim 15 per cent hoist, which the railways want superseded later by a 20 per cent increase. They received a 21 per cent boost last March.

Seven provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec—are opposing the double-barrelled application.

South Africa Sees Split In Government

JOHANNESBURG, Jan. 4 (Reuters).—Political circles here see the defeat of the South African Government as a possibility due to a threatened split in the Nationalist-Afrikaner Party Coalition.

The two groups are at odds over the Nationalists' announced intention to abolish native representation in Parliament and the right of natives in the Cape of Good Hope Province to vote if they own property and comply with other conditions.

Political circles say indications are that Finance Minister N. C. Havenga, leader of the Afrikaner Party, will resign from the Cabinet. If he does this and joins forces with Field Marshal Smuts, leader of the United Party which now is in opposition, they could defeat the Government during the next session of Parliament starting January 21.

The rift first loomed when Havenga said in a speech, December 1, that he did not think it would be wise to amend the non-European franchise clauses of the constitution by a simple majority. These clauses protect the rights of the natives to vote and to be represented in Parliament. At present they can only be altered by a two-thirds majority in both Houses but the Government wants to have them repealed by a simple majority.

Prime Minister D. F. Malan, Nationalist leader, replied to Havenga in a statement saying the Government would go ahead with its plans to alter the clauses. He appealed for Afrikaner Party support of the Government in these plans.

Another issue between the Nationalists and their colleagues is the Ossewa-Brandwag membership in the Afrikaner Party. Malan and his followers regard Ossewa-Brandwag as a totalitarian organization. Havenga has said his party opposes the Ossewa-Brandwag ideology but is not ready to expel them.

Communist-Free Labor Group Sought

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—British and United States union leaders will begin talks here January 13 which may lead to a new Communist-free world labor federation, it was disclosed tonight.

An informant said the plan is to take Anglo-American organized labor completely out of the Red-ridden World Federation of Trade Unions.

As a starter, the British Trades Union Congress will hold the forthcoming conference with James Carey, Walter Reuther and other officials of the C.I.O. Further talks bringing in the American Federation of Labor will be held in March.

The informant said British labor leaders hope the proposed new organization eventually will supplant the W.F.T.U., which has 70,000,000 members in 50 countries.

Reports Drop In Relief Costs

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—Army Secretary Kenneth Royall, newly returned from a three-week inspection swing in Europe, today brought some good news to taxpayers who have been shouldering the burden of European recovery.

United States army relief costs in Germany are dropping, he said, because of the improved situation there, and the army expects to have $50,000,000 earmarked for German food left over when the fiscal year ends June 30.

Combined with other factors, that will enable the army to slash $200,000,000 off its request for new food funds, he said.

Extend Merger Of Berlin Zones

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—The United States and Britain today agreed to extend for three months the present agreement merging their zones in Germany.

This step was taken as a temporary measure pending the writing of a new agreement which would include the French zone of Western Germany.

HEROIN SEIZED

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP).—A quantity of Mexican heroin was seized, police said today, after they arrested Vern Epter, 30, whom they described as a leader of an illicit drug gang.

Epter was charged with illegal possession of narcotics. Bail was set at $20,000. Police said the drugs were found in a search of Epter's rooms.

Baby Week, Quiet Week Due to Clash

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP).—National Baby Week and National Noise Abatement Week in the United States coincide this year.

Improbable as this may seem to parents, both start May 1.

The Department of Commerce keeps track of such things, along with running the weather bureau, taking the census and issuing patents. Today it got out a "calendar of specially designated days, weeks and months to be observed during 1949."

There's Honey-for-Breakfast Week, April 17-23; National Dog Week, September 18-24, and National Cat Week, November 6-12.

For some unexplained reason, Groundhog Day shares February 2 with National Hygiene Day.

National Leave-Us-Alone Week begins April 1. No fooling.

Farm Workers Riot in Sicily

ROME, Jan. 4 (Reuters). — Six hundred rioting farm workers attacked the homes of big landowners at Ragusa, Sicily, today and two carabinieri (armed police) were wounded.

Police made baton charges and arrested 11 of the demonstrators.

In South Italy police reinforcements were sent to cope with demonstrations by unemployed and farm workers on strike.

A two-hour strike of all land workers was called from 10 a.m. till noon today in the Signa district of Tuscany.

At Beer Party; Chief Ousted

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP). — The city's fire chief was suspended today for alleged "misconduct and neglect of duty"—to wit: Attending a beer party in a firehouse.

Suspension of Chief Peter Loftus was announced by Fire Commissioner Frank J. Quayle, who charged that:

A party was held in the basement of Firehouse No. 42 the night of December 18.

"Numerous persons in no way connected with or employed by the fire department" were guests and entertainers at the party.

Cabaret Owners Welcome Test Of B.C.'s 'Farcical Liquor Laws'

VANCOUVER, Jan. 4 (CP).—Ducking bottles of liquor under tables in Vancouver cabarets is going to be risky business.

Police Chief Walter Mulligan warned tonight that his dry squads are going to tighten up on liquor drinking in the night spots.

Cabaret owners said: "Swell."

Cocktail bars are illegal in British Columbia and the chief constable warned that pressure on cabaret drinking will continue until consumption of liquor in public places is considerably reduced.

His announcement followed raids last night on three cabarets—the Cave Supper Club, the Palomar and the Mandarin Gardens in Chinatown.

The long arm of the law reached under tables in the three dancing clubs and plucked a total of 11 bottles of liquor. Four men claimed their bottles and police said they would be summonsed.

"Good!" said a spokesman for the British Columbia Cabaret Owners' Association which has been campaigning vigorously against "This province's farcical liquor laws."

"At last we can fight a test case out in the open over the ridiculous drinking laws prevailing here," the spokesman added.

Following an emergency meeting of the cabaret owners today, Association President Sidney Bowles said the "attempted curbs on drinking will only drive drink into vice dens, autos and hotels."

He said the raids may be on the instructions of the Police Commission but believed the "real forces behind them are the rabid prohibitionists—a minority thinking it can control the drinking habits of the majority of the people."

He called on "the people" to get out and fight for "justice and civilized drinking laws."

A delegation from the association is meeting with the Provincial Cabinet later this month on the liquor-law issue.

RICHMOND, B.C., Jan. 4 (CP).—Charges of open drinking on the dance floor during a New Year's Eve dance at Cambie Gymnasium, and of "neglect" of police in "doing their duty" have been voiced by a delegation of residents of Richmond Municipality.

Mrs. Archie Blair, a member of the delegation, told the Municipal Council at a meeting yesterday that a great deal of damage was done to the wash-rooms and windows of the gymnasium. She said "what I am most concerned about is that the police of this municipality do their duty."

Mrs Blair said officials of the Richmond Athletic Club decided to close the dance shortly after midnight. She asked why police "did nothing to disperse the crowd after the dance had been closed."

Reeve R. M. Grauer said the council probably will hold a court of inquiry if written-in complaints can be obtained.

Still Studying Problem Of Reparation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP). — All the "more important" questions about Japan's future have been settled except reparations and the size of her industry, the Far Eastern Commission said today.

The commission issued a report summarizing nearly three years of its work as Allied governing body for the former enemy country. It did not give any reason for the stumbling blocks it apparently has hit on the two remaining issues.

But an official who asked to remain anonymous indicated that Communist successes in the Far East have magnified both the industrial problem and the related reparations puzzle.

"Communist expansion in the Orient has brought further economic deterioration there," he said. "This has rendered Japan unable to develop its foreign trade to the extent planned, and also has curtailed the flow of raw materials to Japanese industries.

"These developments make it increasingly difficult to determine how much industrial capacity Japan must have to make herself economically self-supporting."

He added that the commission hopes both matters, which have plagued it since it started work in February, 1946, will be settled during the coming year.

Remaining reparations questions, officials said, are (a) what Japanese assets are to be removed; (b) to whom they are to be distributed, and (c) how the distribution is to be made.

The countries represented on the Far Eastern Commission are the United States, China, the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, India, The Netherlands, the Philippines, France, New Zealand and Russia.

Many Italians Eyeing Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—Italy has expressed keen interest in sending more immigrants to Canada but has not yet made formal representations to have their entry facilitated, informed sources said today.

These informants said Italy is heavily over-populated and is seeking outlets for the surplus in Canada as well as other countries.

In the Dominion, Italians now are admitted only under the sponsorship of relatives already here or under work contracts with industrial firms. During the first half of last year, almost 1,000 were admitted.

At present there is a considerable waiting list of Italians who have applied for immigration to Canada.

C.B.C. to Study Victoria Bid

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—The C.B.C. board of governors at their next meeting in Montreal January 20-22, inclusive, will hear applications for licences for ten new radio broadcasting stations in Canada, it was announced tonight.

The board, which last met in Ottawa in October, will also deal with a number of applications for the transfer of shares in several existing stations.

The agenda makes no mention of television. At the October meeting, the board deferred action on four television applications pending an investigation of the possibilities of the C.B.C. and private stations developing the first Canadian television stations on a co-operative basis.

Among the applications is one for a licence to establish a new broadcasting station at Victoria, 250 watts on 1230 kc. The application is made in the name of David M. Armstrong.

Another request to be considered is for the transfer of 298 shares in Island Broadcasting Company, Limited, Victoria.

Home Building Takes Lead To Set Construction Record

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP).—Led by a flood of home-building contracts, the Canadian construction industry is enjoying a record-breaking, billion-dollar boom, MacLean Building Reports Ltd., reported tonight.

Figures compiled by the trade publication put the total at $954,082,400 in 1948, more than one-third of this going to the erection of residential buildings. In 1947, the report said, the total value of contracts awarded was $718,137,100.

James A. Daly, editorial director of the company, said the volume of housing construction was particularly significant when compared with previous years. The 1948 total of $373,055,900 split into $342,000,000 for apartments. In 1947, the total was $197,196,800 and in 1929, peak year of the building boom following the first World War, it was $128,901,300.

Dog Race Will Feature North Trappers' Festival

WINNIPEG, Jan. 4 (CP).—Roses will be going to the dogs at the Northern Manitoba Trappers' Festival opening at The Pas in two weeks' time.

The festival, described by Chamber of Commerce officials as "bigger and better" than last year's inaugural event, will include such varied competitions as Indian tepee building, wood cutting and sawing races, handicraft judging and bonspiels.

Billed as top event, however, will be a 120-mile dog race from The Pas to Cranberry Portage and back, the winning team to be decorated with a wreath of roses by the Carnival Queen.

Festival officials say that entries—with the deadline not until midnight, January 18—already are sufficient to guarantee that staccato cries of "mush" will drown out the drone of mechanized machines that have been making inroads into the Northland.

Consideration also is reported given—although unofficially as yet—to a race between dog teams and a "gasoline malamute," a mechanized toboggan invented by Ralph Swallows of Cranberry Portage.

The toboggan was described as performing admirably on its trial run recently, but proponents of dog teams claim that over rough areas the latter would more than equal the mechanized vehicle.

First prize in the marathon dog race, scheduled for January 20, second day of the festival, will be $1,000, with $300 and $200 for second and third.

Named the Canadian Championship Dog Race, course will cover the 60 miles from The Pas to Cranberry Portage the first day, the return lap to be completed January 21. Any kind of hitch or sleigh will be eligible, with no restrictions placed on the number of dogs used on the team.

Located 300 miles northwest of Winnipeg, last year's festival attracted visitors from many parts of Canada and the United States. This year, in order to permit a wide range of entries, the slogan "North of 53" has been dropped by the festival committee.

The four-day affair, however, will be strictly Northland, with fiddlers and jiggers, ice palace and a snow queen, moccasin dancing and freight dog racing.

City Workers Oppose Offer By Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Jan. 4 (CP).—City Council today approved a new classification and pay plan for city hall employees.

The plan, effective January 1, may increase the payroll for 800 civic workers by $57,000 or $152,000, depending on whether increases are allowed in place of an across-the-board adjustment which the Civic Workers' Union is expected to demand.

Civic employees have been reclassified under the plan but there will be no salary reductions.

The new salary structure, however, failed to meet the approval of Business Agent William Black of the City Hall Employees' Association.

He said there were many points review the plan "from beginning to end" before accepting it.

He said these were many points in the plan which are "completely unsatisfactory." He did not enlarge on the statement.

Snow Spreads Over Britain

LONDON, Jan. 4 (Reuters). — Snow continued in Northern Britain today, with danger of outlying places being cut off. In southern districts heavy rains started floods.

Snow was reported north of a line from Aberystwyth on the Welsh Coast to Yarmouth in East Anglia.

Derbyshire was most affected with drifts up to three feet deep. Snow ploughs struggled to keep roads open and prevent upland villages from being isolated.

Conditions were severe in Scotland.

Greek Minister Would Create Refugee Army

ATHENS, Jan. 4 (AP).—A dynamic course of military action to relieve a portion of the nearly 750,000 refugees who get ten cents a day for subsistence has been recommended by the Greek Minister of Welfare.

To counter malnutrition and exposure, Constantine Karamanlis wants to give guns and ammunition to peasants driven from their homes by Communist guerrillas so they can fight for their farms.

Karamanlis urged arming of 20,000 refugees at a cost of $800,000. He asked another $200,000 monthly to keep the counter-guerrilla force supplied.

The plight of the refugees has been intensified by a particularly severe Winter.

BOOST CHINA AID

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 (AP).—The United States today boosted foreign aid to China by $16,490,000 to provide emergency food supplies of wheat and rice to seven large population centres in that civil war-ravaged country. The action by the Economic Co-operation Administration is in line with the policy of maintaining a rationing program for emergency food supplies in the cities of Peiping, Tientsin, Tsingtao, Shanghai, Nanking, Canton and Swatow.

Cost-of-Living For December Released Today

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—The Government's cost-of-living index comes out tomorrow, but there is no indication whether it will reflect an upward or a downward trend in prices.

Price tendencies in recent months have indicated a slackening in the inflationary surge of the last 21 months, but Government experts say this cannot be taken as a sign that the rise has been or is about to be halted.

Still, last month's report showed that for the first time in that 21-month period the cost-of-living barometer had stayed unchanged at 158.6, as of November 1. This indicated price trends between October 1 and November 1.

"Tomorrow's report will reflect price activity between November 1 and December 1.

Legal Curbing Of Communists Major Problem

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—The problem of how to curb any subversive Communist activities without infringing on general democratic rights is one of a permanent nature for the Government's legal experts, informed sources said today.

"There are lots of people who think something should be done about Reds," an official said, "but they never seem to come forward with any concrete proposal for doing it."

The problem was being considered "all the time."

The R.C.M.P., while making no comment, are known to be constantly on the alert for any subversive activities and there have been reports that they feel that the country's laws could be tightened to help them out.

The one big legal action against Communists in this country arose out of the Soviet espionage inquiry which sent eight persons to prison for violations of the Official Secrets Act.

This sweeping statute remains on the law books. There also is provision in the Criminal Code for penalties for sedition, but prosecutions for this usually fall back upon the common law which has grown out of court judgments of the past.

Margarine May Be White, Lemon But Probably Not Butter-Colored

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—When margarine hits the market in full flood, don't be surprised if it turns out to be a flat white, a meekly-toned lemon or even seaweed green.

One thing seems certain. It won't have the rich, golden hue of butter.

The expectation here is that the dairy industry, including the man who milks the cow and the man who makes the butter, will press for legislation to bar any attempt to produce butter-colored margarine. They want to make sure the consumer knows he is buying margarine and not butter.

NO ONE SURE

For the moment, no one here is sure just who is going to establish the standards for margarine, whether it is to be the Dominion or the provinces. The Dominion is waiting to see what attitude the provinces adopt and the provinces have an equally cautious eye on Ottawa.

The uncertainty arises from the Supreme Court decision which said, in effect, that the Dominion has no right to ban the manufacture and sale of margarine, even though it had been doing it for 62 years. The authority over margarine, the court went on, belonged to the provinces.

RULES DRAFTED

The Dominion, under the Food and Drug Act, is known to have drafted some sample regulations for margarine, and these are understood to touch on the question of coloring. But, for the time being, the draft standards are being kept under wraps.

The situation likely will be cleared when Parliament and the provincial Legislatures open their Spring sittings.

It may be that a situation will develop similar to that existing south of the border, where each state enacts its own laws on the coloring of margarine. In some states, you can buy butter-colored margarine, in others it has a lemon tinge and in still others it is in its manufactured state—white—with a coloring capsule enclosed.

Canadians have had few experiences with margarine. Its manufacture and sale was permitted in Canada following the Great War, but the product then was unbleached and uncolored and bore little resemblance to butter. Canadian soldiers in Britain in both wars were fed butter-colored margarine.

FAVORS LIGHT HUE

The Canadian Federation of Agriculture is understood to be in favor of a lemon-colored margarine, which would be just enough of a change of hue to prevent illegal substitution.

For that, say the dairy people, is all they are worried about. They want a safeguard against the fraud and deception—and unfair competition for the industry—which would arise if unscrupulous retailers were able to pass yellow margarine as butter.

May Recognize South Korea

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—An authoritative source today reported Britain has decided to recognize the American-sponsored Seoul Government as the ruler of divided Korea.

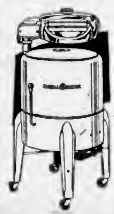

Recognition is to be announced within the next two weeks, the informant said. The United States recognized the Seoul authority last week-end.

Korea was divided into northern and southern segments after the Japanese surrender. Russian troops moved in to occupy the northern part of the country and United States troops went into the south under terms of the armistice agreement.

A Russian-sponsored Government which claims it represents the whole country is in existence in the north.

A plant for the production of rose oil has recently been established at Mook in The Netherlands, the first of its kind in the country.

This Will Tickle You, Maybe; Eagles Start Beard Campaign

The Eagles' beard-growing contest is now officially under way.

The novelty chin-foliage event is open to all men of the Greater Victoria area, and winners are going to pick up cash prizes totaling nearly $1,000. First prize is $300.

While sale of razor blades may drop, barber shop proprietors are not overly concerned as whiskers need frequent trimmings.

More than 200 Eagles and others registered for the contest on its opening day Monday. If a member doesn't wish to enter he may obtain a special "exemption" button for a nominal fee.

All money raised will go toward various Eagles' charities.

BEARD POLICE

Members of the organization have been appointed as "beard police," and will be keeping an eye open for clean-shaven men not wearing exemption buttons.

Such "police" descended on Mayor Percy E. George in his office yesterday morning, officially charged him and collected a fine.

"Policemen" Charles Bowes and Ernie Sulmer "raided" the Mayor's headquarters. A "court" was hastily established, and to Mayor George was read the following grave charge:

"Brother Percy E. George stands charged that he did on or before the fourth day of January, 1949 fail to enter the beard-growing contest or to apply for an exemption button, contrary to a by-law passed by a committee in charge of the Eagles' golden anniversary celebrations."

The Mayor pleaded guilty and "prosecutor" James J. Proudfoot demanded that he pay full charges plus court costs amounting to two cents—"to be divided equally between the judge and lawyer."

George Goodenough appeared as "defending attorney."

The contest will continue until April 8, date of the Victoria Aerie's 50th birthday.

INDUCTION THURSDAY

Induction of Archdeacon G. R. Calvert, as rector and dean of Christ Church Cathedral will take place at the Cathedral Thursday, January 6 at 8 p.m.

Dean Cecil Swanson, of Christ Church Cathedral, Vancouver, will be special preacher.

HOUSE ENTERED

A number of articles were stolen from the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. Brown, 1101 Burnside Road, over the festive season, according to Saanich Police.

Missing are a double-barrel shotgun, a ladies' handbag containing a $50 cheque gold ring, cigarette case and about $20 in cash.

LICENCE FINE

William Kuchirka, 1228 Juno Street, was fined $5 in city police court yesterday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of driving a motorcycle without a driver's licence.

Annual installation dinner and dance of the Kiwanis Club will be held Friday in the Empress Hotel ballroom, starting at 6.30 p.m.

In addition to officers and directors, Denis Hagar will be installed as Lieutenant-Governor of this Kiwanis district. Special music and entertainment features are planned and dancing will start at 8 and continue until midnight.

The club did not hold its regular luncheon meeting yesterday at the Empress Hotel, but for the benefit of a few members unable to attend the installation affair, a "round table" meeting was held at Terry's dining-room. There was no guest speaker.

FINED $5

William J. Gawne, 1535 Morrison Street, was fined $5 in city police court yesterday when found guilty on a charge of making a left-hand turn on Douglas Street.

The accused argued that he made the turn only because he was crowded by a bus turning onto Pandora Avenue. Constable Bonar Hannay, who laid the charge, maintained that there was sufficient room for Gawne to pass.

Magistrate H. C. Hall said he agreed with Constable Hannay's statement, adding that Douglas Street is very wide.

CROWDED AREAS

Too many pedestrians are killed near where they live in overcrowded sections. Often the people living in such areas are not traffic-wise. Drivers must be extra careful in such sections. Children play in the streets; often their elders fail to or cannot read usual printed warnings.

Workers Get More Holidays

A wage increase of eight cents an hour and an increase from three to six in the number of statutory holidays granted each year was provided in an agreement reached between the United Mine Workers of America, Local 13356, and Canadian Industries Ltd., chemical division, at New Westminster, the Labor Relations Board announced yesterday.

Twenty-one employees are affected.

The board announced that Professor J. A. Crumb of the University of British Columbia has been appointed chairman of a conciliation board in a dispute between Superior Food Stores Ltd., and Retail Meat Employees' Federal Union, Local 322 of Vancouver. Other members of the board are J. A. Grimmett, representing the company, and George R. Bengough, representing the union.

About 36 employees are involved, the Labor Relations Board said.

Permits Pass $60,000 In Two Days

More than $60,000 in building permits have been issued by the city in the first two business days of 1949.

About $45,000 in building was authorised Monday and close to $20,000 yesterday.

First permit was taken out by Ald. Edward Williams for an $8,000 house at Fairfield and Foul Bay Roads.

Largest permits were issued to Davis Motors for $20,000 alterations and additions to the garage and sales office at 900 Fort Street, and to Shell Oil Co for a $14,000 service station at 500 Cook Street.

Interment will be in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

Hope to Allay Farm Trouble

Donald Morton, Westholme farmer, who sat on a stump to protect his property, has been assured his water supply will not be imperiled by highway contractors. Hon E. C. Carson, Minister of Public Works, said last night a letter had been sent Mr Morton a day after he began his stunt on the stump, advising him that engineers would visit the farm and see that precautions were taken to safeguard his water supply.

Work on that section of the highway which will cut across Morton's property has been stopped, pending a visit of departmental engineers who have been busily engaged north of Duncan during the cold snap.

They are expected to be at the Morton farm Wednesday, when "finis" should be written to the dispute which was the result of too speedy progress by highway contractors who failed to make provision to protect the Westholme man's water supply.

Blaze Causes Slight Damage

Slight damage was caused at Suite 2, Bellcarra Court, 949 Government Street, at 5.30 p.m. yesterday when fire broke out under the fireplace.

City firemen also extinguished a chimney fire at 5.40 p.m. at 1040 Clear Street. No damage was caused.

No Beard, Mayor Put in Irons

Wismer Sent 90 More Letters Protesting Ban on Margarine

Another 90 letters from irate British Columbia housewives demanding the removal of the ban on margarine were dumped in the office of Attorney General Gordon Wismer yesterday.

This brings the total to nearly 600 since last Friday. Majority are from Vancouver and district.

An official in the Attorney General's office said the number had become so great that they cannot now be all personally answered as is the usual custom.

In other quarters yesterday it was stated that there is little likelihood that a special tax will be placed on the sale of margarine.

Farmers have suggested a tax of ten to 15 cents a pound because margarine contains oil, and gasoline and fuel oil are taxed.

Any provincial tax on margarine would have to be a direct tax similar to the sales tax.

Observers say it would be a difficult step to take politically because food has already been exempt under the sales tax and a special levy on margarine would be regarded as discriminatory.

Wied Appeal To Be Heard During Month

Court of Appeal will hear 35 cases more than half of them against criminal convictions, when it begins sittings here January 11.

Majority of the cases are from Vancouver, but appeal of Jacob E. Wied from a conviction of murder in Assize Court here is one of the most important.

Wied, a 39-year-old carpenter, claims in his appeal that the jury found him guilty on circumstantial evidence and he was not given the benefit of the doubt.

Call Out Firemen

PARKSVILLE, Jan. 4 — Parksville Volunteer Fire Brigade had its first alarm of the year when members were called out to a chimney fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs H. Stickland. Due to their prompt response to the call, no serious damage was done beyond the scorching of a wall. Fire Chief William Banks was in charge of the crew.

Program will include a pantomime, humorous skit, tableau of the Nativity, and choir numbers.

Children of the Saanich Indian School will take part in the Nativity play.

Father X. Lauzon, head of the Indian Mission at Saanich, is in charge of the concert.

MIST PREVENTS STATIC

A fine mist of water and oil is sprayed on cotton during ginning to prevent the development of static electricity which seriously clogs machinery.

Cars Damaged During Crash

Icy road conditions at Gorge and Albion Roads caused a two-car collision last night, according to Saanich police.

Police said a car operated by Kenneth Hunt, 1347 Basil Avenue, was parked on the right side of the road out of gasoline with the tail light burning when struck by a car driven by Charles A. Chisholm, 2850 Colquitz Avenue.

Chisholm's car received $125 damage and was impounded, and the other car received $15 damage. Sergeant Cecil Pearce and Constable Robert Coleman attended.

Plans Now Being Made For Legislature Opening

Preparations are under way for the usual pomp and ceremony to attend the opening of the fourth session of the 21st British Columbia Legislative Assembly.

The House will meet at 3 p.m. Tuesday, February 8, to hear the Speech from the Throne delivered by His Honor Lieutenant-Governor Charles A. Banks.

Invitations have already been sent out to those formally invited to attend the session, regarded as the first social event of the year.

On the floor of the House, 297 seats are available for the "precedence list." Of these, 186 have been set aside for ministers and members' families and guests of Lieutenant-Governor. With 111 seats remaining, the sergeant-at-arms has sent out 150 invitations for others on the list, including the clergy, judiciary, senators, Federal representatives, consular service, navy, army, air force, etc.

The Speaker's and ladies' galleries will be filled with those holding invitations from Mr Speaker, mostly by people who have written asking for seats.

Rush seats are available for 120 persons, 60 on each side of the House. For these the public will have to queue-up to obtain tickets just before the session opens.

By-Law Could Be Tough On Victoria's Goldfish

Goldfish and other inhabitants of the aquarium might find themselves faced with a housing shortage if the city decided on strict enforcement of its Public Health By-Law.

There is a section of the by-law which can be taken as downright unfriendly to goldfish.

Section 74-A states: "No person shall keep any fish alive in any waters within the limits of the said city of Victoria or adjacent thereto, whether in a crate, tank, boat, scow or other enclosure or receptacle of any description whatsoever."

But owners of underwater pets can breathe easy.

The Public Health By-Law was passed in May, 1939, with no intention of outlawing goldfish. The clause in question was inserted to stop deepsea fishermen from keeping their catch of fish alive in containers so that they could sell them as fresh at the end of an extended length of time. It was felt this practise constituted a menace to public health.

Bargain Day for Taxes Draws Many Victorians

Collector's office at the City Hall is packed with "four percenters" these first days of the new year.

Harry G. Allan, acting assessor-collector, said yesterday that $40,000 in advance 1949 taxes were paid Monday and total for the first two days of this year is expected to reach the $87,000 for the first two days of 1948.

The early taxpayers get a four per cent per annum reduction from the date taxes are paid until October 1. Thus, if taxpayer paid his 1949 taxes on the first day this year, he would get a reduction of 4 per cent per annum for the nine-month period until Oct. 1. The saving is reduced then.

Assessment for 1949 is known but what the taxes will be on property and improvements will not be known until City Council sets the mill rate this year when the budget is approved.

BEING PAID

Advance taxes are being paid on the basis of what they were last year with an allowance for the 4 per cent saving. When the mill rate is set and exact taxes known, a notice will be sent to each taxpayer. Refunds will be given where taxes are overpaid and the taxpayer will have to pay the difference if he underpaid.

Mr Allan said taxpayers began paying advance taxes as far back as December. After the October 1 date, the percentage saving is reduced in stages and finally eliminated. Then penalties for late payment take effect.

Session May Discuss Soil Conservation Plan

A compulsory soil conservation plan which would limit cutting trees on British Columbia farms in dry districts is being supported for the February session of the Legislature, it was learned yesterday.

Department of Agriculture soil experts have pointed to the growing need for some systematic method of soil and moisture control particularly in the Peace River district and in the Saanich Peninsula.

They have pointed out that as more and more farmers move into these areas virtually all trees are being removed.

Saanich is regarded as potentially one of the worst trouble spots. Although it is generally regarded as being in the wet coastal belt rainfall in June, July and August is only about 2.07 inches, compared to 2.53 inches in the Okanagan Valley, frequently referred to as a "desert" area.

ONE-QUARTER

A suggestion has been advanced that farmers in some areas be required to keep one-quarter of their land in trees.

Irrigation has been recommended as another method of increasing productivity in Saanich.

"The soils of Saanich are of good quality and they would respond to irrigation, according to C. C. Kelly, soil surveyor.

"When the land is irrigated it is possible to have better control of soil fertility ... the type of irrigation system most suitable for this area is sprinkler irrigation including buried pipe lines.

"This type is the most economical with water and seepage a lesser problem than furrow irrigation. By control reservoirs and other means, it is desirable to ensure that water delivered to the land is at the highest possible temperature."

Agriculture Minister Frank Putnam is taking a keen interest in the Saanich problem. He warned the Legislature at its last session of the importance of some action.

Not That Cold, Warren Says; Forwards Protest to Ottawa

Somebody has cast a slur upon Victoria's climate, and Publicity Bureau Commissioner George I. Warren is disturbed about it.

In the December 24 issue of The Ottawa Journal a Canadian Press weather roundup for major cities across Canada gave Victoria's temperature as 20 degrees that day.

"It was cold all right, but not that cold," Mr. Warren remarked. A careful check, he explained, showed the city's temperatures on the day in question as 40 degrees maximum and 30 minimum.

Letters—a little warmer than any of the temperatures in question—are now on their way to both The Ottawa Journal and The Canadian Press.

"They're just jealous of us, but it isn't going to get them anywhere," said Mr. Warren.

Cease Fire Orders Present Strange Paradox

THE extent to which the United Nations has compromised its usefulness, in averting war and bringing nations together in peaceful discussion, through the issuance of "cease fire" orders which are simply not obeyed is not the least of the headaches to which the world is heir today. The latest instance, the "cease fire" order in Indonesia, was not obeyed until the Dutch in their own terms "had seized the last economically important area controlled by the Indonesia Republic." That happened curiously to be the Djambi oil fields in Southern Sumatra.

On the previous occasion, the Jewish-Arab war in Palestine, the United Nations issued a succession of "cease fire" orders, "truces" and other edicts, but the fighting was not brought to a halt until again it was announced that one side had captured most of what it wanted. Indeed in the case of Palestine neither the Arabs nor the Jews appeared to have cared a button for what the United Nations ordered, if they thought they had it within their power to win by force of arms.

There have been earlier examples, most of the way through the Balkans and a good long distance into the Near East. With strange persistence, oil fields, and the economic rivalry which results from their exploitation, can be traced almost to the taproots of not a few of these disputes. The disputes themselves ranged from small "border affairs" to full-scale wars between nations, even if on a limited front. Nor does it seem to have made very much difference whether Communist or Western nations were involved. The public derived the impression that the United Nations was being "used" for unseen ends.

The impotence of the United Nations to prevent this form of open aggression, which has continued for three years since hostilities were supposed to have ceased, is today the real threat to the successful future of that organization.

Punishment Should Be Drastic When Necessary

A PUBLIC aware of the need for drastic steps to curb dangerous and drunken driving will endorse Oak Bay Councillor Murdock's suggestion that imposition of more severe penalties on conviction should be encouraged. If this end will be gained by joint action, then all four municipal bodies might well express themselves as being of one mind on the matter.

The accident toll in the Greater Victoria area is too serious to be treated lightly as it has been in the past. A prison term with long-time deprivation of driving licence would seem to be a much more salutary lesson than a fine, particularly when the latter is quite nominal. If some drivers will not obey the rules and keep themselves in condition to drive safely they must be made to do so, or else be kept off the roads.

Allied with stricter punishment for the offender is the equal need of better supervision over the vehicle he drives. All accidents are not the result of poor driving. A much more stringent official check should be kept on the proper observance of traffic regulations.

The driver, his car, and traffic observance; these may be liabilities when care is not observed. Authority should see to it that remedial action creates the change badly needed to make this area a safer place in which to travel.

Leveling in Building Cost Not Yet Reflected Here

REPORTS from Ottawa that building costs throughout Canada began to level off towards the end of 1948 lack the ring of conviction for prospective home builders in this part of the country. While the improvement noted by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in its quarterly publication may reflect the position in Canada as a whole, continuing wage increases in British Columbia are offsetting any small reliefs that may have been felt in prices for materials.

The pay increase of 15 cents an hour for carpenters, agreed upon by the contractors in this area after a protracted strike and a recommendation that was tantamount to an order from the Labor Relations Board, adds several hundred dollars to the cost of every new building. On top of that, electricians, still striking, and workmen in other occupations in the building industry are seeking higher pay.

Confronted with all these increasing labor costs, it is difficult to see how anyone can feel much optimism about an immediate drop, or even an appreciable leveling-off, in the cost of building a home.

Goldenberg Finding Returned to Dominion

THE three Western Provinces have agreed that if prosecutions are to follow the Goldenberg report alleging the existence of a combine affecting the bakery industry they should be launched by the Dominion as an inter-provincial matter. British Columbia, the last of the three Provinces to respond to the Dominion's query, gave this answer last week. Since the Goldenberg report made serious assertions affecting five western bakeries and two trade associations doing business in the three provinces, it will be expected that the Department of Justice take the necessary steps now to bring the issue before an inquiry. The Goldenberg report by its nature is not one that can be ignored.

FAITH IN CANADA

Sir,—As a newly-arrived immigrant I can agree with Mrs. S. Webb's letter.

There is not such a thing as discontented and obscure immigrants; let us say, disappointed immigrants. It takes a lot of grit to sell up a home and leave loved ones to venture in a new land and to have to return takes even more grit.

I admire those that have returned, for they knew what they have to face; but hardships can be faced so much easier with loved ones to give a helping hand.

I felt like going back and in my heart I shall always hope to see England again: but my husband is determined to make a go of it in this grand country.

It has been hard these past nine months, with him being in hospital three months, but once again we face 1949 with the same high hopes as we left our beloved London, England, in March, 1948.

But please do not slight the returned crusaders. They will help swell the ranks of that so hard pressed England they have gone home to, with even greater courage than when they left England's shores.

MRS. R. NEWMAN.

A REPLY

Sir,—Mrs. L. F. Heywood's letter in your issue of the 24th inst. makes it abundantly clear that her lavish criticism of the British Government's policy is not based on reason and a desire to understand the problems confronting that great nation, and indeed that of the whole world.

The fact that Britain's Labor Government has not lost a seat in its many heavily contested by-elections should be sufficient rebuttal of the frivolous accusations brought against it.

Apparently there are many Britons who cannot stand up for their Mother Country, so let's hear what an American official of the United Nations at Geneva has to say:

"I shall first try briefly to review the British position . . . taking 1938 as 100. The British index of industrial production stood at 130 in the second quarter of 1948. The index of all European production for the same period, excluding the United Kingdom, stood at 91.

"The figure of 130 for Great Britain represents an increase of more than 25 per cent in production since the first quarter of 1946. Only a very few European countries can show, in relation to prewar, a production level as high as that of Great Britain in 1948, among these, notably, are Norway and the Scandinavian countries." (Which it is worth noting are socialized countries.)

"If Britain's effort with respect to production in 1945 can be described as good, its trade recovery is unique. Every British citizen has, in one way or another, directly borne the burden of this effort. Here is the measure and the result of a policy of purposeful austerity."

Your correspondent states: "Government of a country is not to be learned in six easy lessons." I would remind her that the art of governing is not the only subject difficult of attainment.

The British Government is made up of a truly representative cross-section of its people. Ernest Bevin, Aneurin Bevan and Shinwell came from manual workers. Morrison was a shop assistant. Alexander came from the co-operative movement while Attlee, Dalton, Gritskill and Noel Baker were lecturers in the London School of Economics. Cripps was a brilliant lawyer. Their work is to build up a society in which mankind can co-operate in a truly Christian manner, discarding the nineteenth century faith in laisses faire.

Liberty

Say, what is Freedom? What the right of souls
Which all who know are bound to keep or die.
And who knows not, is dead? In vain ye pry
In musty archives, or retentive scrolls.
Charters and statutes, constitutions, rolls,
And remnants of the old world's history:—
These show what has been, not what ought to be.
Or teach at best how wiser Time controls
Man's futile purposes. As vain the search
Of restless factions, who, in lawless will,
Fix the foundations of a creedless church—
A lawless rule—an anarchy of ill:
But what is Freedom? Rightly understood,
A universal license to be good.

By TOM TAYLOR

I DON'T ken John Peel very well, so I'm a bit reluctant to put an oar in about his red coat and hunting habits, but . . .

Well, it happens that a reader who's been following the controversy raging in the "Letters" column has brought in an old calendar, 1920 to be precise, put out by a Carlisle bookseller. It contains a portrait of John, and his life-story written by one James Walter Brown.

He thought you might be interested.

Remember, though, I'm neutral in this affair, and am merely condensing the data.

Did John Peel ever exist, or is he a mythical hunt god, even as Tom Bowling is an enshrinement of the perfection of a British tar?

The answer, says Mr. Brown, is in the register of Caldbeck Parish Church, where he was baptized and married, and in whose sequestered graveyard he now rests. He was born the son of a yeoman, at Greenrigg, a little hamlet in High Caldbeck Township, in 1776.

Seemingly Peel was as impetuous in courtship as in horsemanship. His portrait, by the way, shows him dressed in riding clothes, complete with crop. Having at the age of 20 fallen in love with Mary White, 18, pretty, and the daughter of a neighboring yeoman, he put up the banns.

MIDNIGHT ELOPEMENT

'I forbid the banns," said his future mother-in-law. "They're far ower young." Whereupon John borrowed his father's fleetest steed, received Mary from her window at midnight, and bore her off to Gretna Green in triumph.

His wife inherited from her father a small property at Ruthwaite, near Ireby, and there Peel resided from 1823 until his death on November 13, 1854. Five years later his wife followed him to his grave, and probably that occasion was the only one since her midnight ride to Gretna Green, 62 years before, when a foxhunt was deferred on her account. In the "Story of John Peel" in the Cornhill Magazine for October, 1919, it is related of Peel's son "Young John"—he was "Young John" till he died at the age of 90—that a patron was asking him aboot the arrangements for the coming week.

"Weel," said Young John, "we can hunt Munda', an we can hunt Wednesda', but we can't hunt Tuesda' becos' we're goin' to bury Muther."

HIS COAT WAS CHANGED

The calendar portrait of John Peel is said to agree with the various extant accounts of his appearance. He was well over six feet, his frame erect and powerful, his features well-chiselled and his eyes blue and sparkling. His "coat so gray," which Cockney editors transmogrified into "coat so gay," was made from hodden gray cloth, woven from a mixture of undyed black and white wool, which was largely worn by Cumbrans of his class and period.

"Of the origin of the celebrated song "D'ye Ken John Peel," its author, John Woodcock Graves, had this to say in his account written in 1863.

"Nearly forty years have now wasted away since John Peel and I sat in a snug parlor at Caldbeck, hunting over again many a good run, when a flaxen-haired daughter of mine came in saying, 'Father, what do they say to what Granny sings?' Granny was singing to sleep my eldest son with a very old rant called 'Bonnie Annie.' The pen and ink for hunting appointments being on the table, the idea of writing a song to this old air forced itself on me, and thus was produced, impromptu, 'D'ye Ken John Peel With His Coat So Gray.' Immediately after I sang it to poor Peel, and I well remember saying to him in a joking style, 'By Jove, Peel, you'll be sung when we're both run to earth.'"

CHANCE PLAYS PART

It was some time, though, before the Cumberland yeoman became known in all the hamlets of the earth from Victoria to Venezuela and from Caldbeck to Constantinople. Chance played its part, as it so often does.

The song was not widely known for many years after Peel died, then it suddenly burst into popular favor in London dancing rooms and in most places of joviality and festivity, due to one William Metcalfe. Dissatisfied with the way the song was droned monotonously, he searched out the original rant of "Bonnie Annie" and from that air he composed the tune as it now exists. That was in 1868. Shortly afterwards he was invited to sing his song, then recently published, at the annual dinner of the Cumberland Benevolent Institution in London.

It was there that "D'ye Ken John Peel" got the fillip that sent it round the world, and eventually made it a subject for the "Letters" column of this newspaper.

The original words of the song underwent a change when "Songs and Ballads of Cumberland" was published by George Coward in 1866. In preparing the volume the latter suggested some alterations to John Woodcock Graves—then living in Tasmania, where he died at the age of 91—and these were incorporated in the version now sung with gusto throughout the English-speaking world.

Perhaps you'll ken John Peel a little better now.

A NATIONALLY-KNOWN packing plant, Canada Packers, Ltd., Toronto, has set its target to go into the oleomargarine manufacturing business right away on a big scale.

Yuletide gifts of two-pound packages of this butter substitute were distributed by the company. The product is called "Margene." One pound is yellow, just like butter. The other is white, the color of lard.

Recipients of these gifts report there is no difference in the taste and both mighty good. Not ready for the general market yet, the packing firm hopes to swing into full production within a few weeks. No price tag has been announced.

Canada is the second British Commonwealth country and the twentieth world nation to accord formal recognition to the new Jewish State of Israel.

There is a long list of important nations that have not yet taken the step. Among these are Britain, France, China, Australia, New Zealand, India and Pakistan.

The State of Israel was proclaimed last May 15, but Canada withheld recognition until it felt the new state had complied with the essential conditions of statehood—external independence and effective government within a reasonably well-defined territory. It feels now that during the seven months that have elapsed, Israel has given satisfactory proof that it complies with these conditions.

The way is now open for exchange of diplomatic representatives, although this doesn't necessarily follow. In fact, it is unlikely Canada will grant diplomatic recognition to Israel as long as there is open hostility between the Jews and the Arabs.

Canada's super-shopper is W. D. Low, managing director of the little-known Canadian Commercial Corporation, a Federal Government agency in the buying business. Although the company has only been in operation since May, 1946, its total transactions come close to the $500,000,000 mark.

The origin of the corporation goes back to the early days of the World War when it was decided to set up a centralized purchasing agency for all armed forces, known as the Defence Purchasing Board. This was later turned into the Department of Munitions and Supply, which assumed responsibility for over $11,000,000,000 of production, contracts, construction and so forth between 1939 and 1945.

Mr. Low, former chief buyer of the C.N.R. in Montreal, set up the original Defence Purchasing Board and later became executive assistant to the deputy minister of munitions and supply with supervision over all purchasing. Afterwards, he became chairman of the Canadian Export Board.

No matter what is wanted by the Canadian Government, or wanted here by foreign governments, the corporation will buy it and arrange delivery. Purchases have ranged from $70,000,000 worth of ships to children's pyjamas, from guns to penicillin.

Nearly everyone has heard that the Canadian Government has purchased 15,000,000 pounds of butter from outside sources to help relieve the expected shortage in the next few months. Well, it's the Canadian Commercial Corporation that found out where butter was available, and arranged for the purchase and accepted delivery.

Among its recent purchases were five helicopters for R.C.A.F. training and two others for use of the Canadian Army in rescue work.

The corporation also makes purchases in Canada for foreign governments. Not so long ago, there came a rush order for crystalline penicillin. Bought from Canadian manufacturers, it was flown to South China, and then transported by special carrier to North China.

Among the corporation's larger orders was one from the French Government some months ago totalling approximately $70,000,000 for a series of cargo vessels, lighthouse tenders, hopper barges, steel colliers and other vessels.

One of its many tasks in 1948 was to let all the contracts for 2,300 housing units for married members of the Canadian armed forces.

Pointing the Dart

(From The Times, London)

MANY of us must wish that the principle of the powder and the jam had been applied to our education as it is for the pampered youth of today. The doing of sums would have earned a less enduring unpopularity and we might have learnt to do them better into the bargain had they been combined with some exciting game.

The Home Secretary thinks so since he upholds the playing of darts in public houses as the only way he knows of "teaching the higher mathematics to the proletariat." Whether or not he is himself expert in the game we do not know. Possibly not, since he took an expert with him to taste the beer which is often its agreeable accompaniment, but he is clearly right in saying that it demands great skill.

Those who have only once or twice attempted it will say in the words of Hubert the forester that they "might as well shoot at the edge of our parson's whittle or at a wheatstraw or at a sunbeam." It is on the game's intellectual rather than physical merits, however, that Mr. Ede appears to lay the greater stress, and he might well carry his principle into wider fields of play. Association football can teach only the simplest arithmetic, but the reckoning at Rugby is more advanced and as for basketball the score mounts almost at the speed of thought. Cricket affords a pleasing exercise of the intelligence in arriving at the bowler's analysis and at the same time may infuse a spot of art as well.

The education claims of golf must not be disregarded. Leaving aside the players who have gained the unfortunate reputation of being bad counters, golf touches now and then the fringe of fractions. To discover three-quarters of the difference between two players' handicaps may be comparatively easy, but it is a very different matter when it comes to a form of the game known as a greensome. "Multiply," says the invaluable textbook, "the lower handicap of the pair by 6, multiply the higher handicap of the pair by 4, add the two together and this figure will be the medal handicap of the pair." Thus to be plunged into the realm of "those damned dots" is indeed to mingle the useful with the sweet.

There are other games that may possibly be considered too immoral for the purposes of education. It is not everyone who can set down the score at bridge without consulting the back of the marker, nor even add it up correctly afterwards. There is piquet, which demands a calculation of the laws of chance. It is recorded of Arthur Pendennis that he gained little good from his dicing parties with Mr. Bloundell-Bloundell "except a knowledge of the odds at hazard which he might have learnt out of books." Perhaps dice had better not be prayed in aid of the argument, but the manly game of darts is above suspicion. For teaching subtraction Mr. Ede says there is nothing like it.

Brace read it through, then said: "You seem to have forgotten one ceremony."

Looking Back

Through Colonist Files

25 YEARS AGO—The city's share of provincial liquor profits in 1923 was $45,383, which is $10,000 more than was estimated.

50 YEARS AGO—A sleigh with hose for immediate use has been put into service by the fire brigade, and a four-horse team is ready to run with the steamer.

85 YEARS AGO—The Queen Charlotte Mining Company will send by the ship Rosedale to Liverpool direct 165 bags of copper ore from their mine on Queen Charlotte's Island.

Death, Ruin Lie in Wake Of Twisters

WARREN, Ark., Jan. 4 (AP).—A series of tornadoes and twisters battered areas in Arkansas and Louisiana yesterday, killing 59. Between 250 and 350 were injured.

A number of communities — a dozen or more—in the neighboring Southern States were hit, but the most violent storm developed in this lumber mill town of 7,500. The Warren casualty list included 46 known dead and between 250 and 300 hurt, some possibly fatally.

A new storm came to light today with the death of Mrs Dub Taylor of Grapevine, west of Pine Bluff. A storm was reported to have damaged several buildings there last night.

The storms began in Louisiana yesterday afternoon, lashed about until shortly before dinner-time, when they apparently combined and bore down on Warren with a full head of terrific, swirling winds, rain and hail.

After that the storm abated in fury, but dipped to earth at one or two more places.

WEARY JOB

Warren residents, still stunned by the catastrophe, have begun the weary job of bringing some order out of the chaos.

What they faced was summed up by Mayor Jim Hurley. He predicted it would be years before his town recovered from the shock. However, disrupted utility services are being restored quickly.

About half the dead had been identified. Most of the bodies lay in a garage behind a funeral home and a thin line of survivors was permitted to view the bodies. It was a difficult task because some of them were mangled almost beyond recognition.

Three pressing items were housing, clothing and feeding the homeless. Tents were being provided for shelter and relief agencies moved quickly to provide the other necessities.

Another step in rehabilitation was clearing the streets of debris. Mayor Hurley said convicts from Tucker Prison Farm would do this, with the aid of bulldozers.

After a survey, the mayor announced that at least 250 homes had been wiped out or damaged.

North Atlantic Defence May Be Settled at Sea

LONDON, Jan. 4 (AP).—High British sources said today nearly a dozen Western power foreign ministers will meet in the Spring to conclude the North Atlantic Defence Pact.

One unofficial report was that the ministers might meet on a vessel in the Atlantic to sign the accord.

The United States, Britain, Canada, France, Belgium, The Netherlands and Luxembourg, principals in the negotiations, are expected to invite Denmark, Iceland, Eire and Portugal to join the Alliance.

Other countries which may be invited include Norway, Sweden, Italy, Greece and Turkey. The British informants said the conferees in Washington have made no final decision on countries which will be asked to join the Alliance.

The feeling in London is that Sweden, at least, will refuse in line with her neutrality policy.

Emphasis Likely on Security In Forthcoming Union Demands

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—A new round of financial demands is developing in Canadian labor as 1949 opens.

However, the pressure in many unions may be turned towards obtaining security benefits such as pensions rather than outright pay boosts.

At the moment, indications are that the size and scope of wage demands will vary with movements of the cost-of-living index in the next couple of months.

Tomorrow's announcement of the official index of December 1 likely will have an important bearing on a meeting of cember 1 likely will have an important bearing on a meeting of top Canadian Congress of Labor officials early next week, at which the wage pattern for the year is to be considered.

TO CONCERT DEMANDS

A probable outgrowth of this meeting is the appointment of a wage co-ordination committee to concert C.C.L. union demands upon employers for greater impact. These unions had the help of such a body last year in their negotiations.

If the cost-of-living index—it was unchanged at 159.6 at November 1—shows signs of remaining fairly stable, some labor men think many unions will choose to consolidate their previous gains by going after "security" rather than pay increases.

Some of these groups already have indicated they are seeking both, scaling down their wage demands in order to leave room for employer contributions to pensions and the like.

However, top officers of both big labor bodies—the C.C.L. and the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada—make it clear they still feel wages have failed to keep pace with the cost of living rise up until now.

Wage increases, said Percy Bengough, T.L.C. president, have been "dissipated by having to pay twice as much for the necessities of life."

Several Canadian unions in the last year have adopted the expedient of pegging their wage contracts directly to the cost of living index, with pay going up or down as the index varies.

As yet, this has not developed into a definite trend, and there are no indications of large-scale adoption of the practice in the coming year.

Suspend Home Oil Trading

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP).—The Toronto Stock Exchange today suspended trading in shares of Home Oil, Ltd., important Canadian oil producer, pending clarification of the manner of a proposed stock issue.

Other Canadian exchanges, Montreal Curb, Vancouver and Calgary, allowed trading to continue.

Home, with producing wells and exploration programs in Alberta, proposes to offer shareholders the opportunity to buy one new share for each eight now held, and the price would be $9 compared with the approximate $13 at which present shares currently are selling.

The offer would be to shareholders of record December 30, would expire January 21, and would not be assignable, that is, shareholders who held stock December 30 can buy the new shares or not, as they wish, but if they do not wish to buy they apparently can't sell their rights to do so to anyone else.

EXCHANGE OBJECTS

This is where the Toronto Exchange objects. It says in the first place that its by-laws provide that notice of such action must be given at least seven days before the record date, for the information of the trading public; and in the next, that the privileges must be assignable.

This, says the exchange, is "to enable shareholders who are given subscription privileges to sell their rights and so secure reimbursement in cash if they are unable or unwilling to invest the necessary funds required to subscribe for additional stock."

In Vancouver, President James R. Lowery of Home says the company will go ahead with its plans, adding that it is not looking for new shareholders and so has not made the offer assignable. He said the shares not applied for will be dealt with in a plan to be submitted to shareholders' meeting.

NO UNDERWRITING

Mr. Lowery stated that the offer will have no underwriting; that is, that it will not be handled through investment channels. A group in Toronto had offered to underwrite the issue but had been refused.

He expects the new share offer to increase outstanding capital by 240,000 shares, bringing the issued total to 2,000,000. The company is authorized to issue 3,000,000.

He said letters to shareholders advising them of the offer are still in the printers' hands, but they were notified when cheques were mailed December 10 to register all shares in their names by December 30. After that advertisements were placed in Canadian newspapers to the same effect, stating that directors were considering a plan which might be of benefit to shareholders. He concluded.

"I am sure we will not receive a complaint from our shareholders."

Says Quick U.S. Action Improbable in China

Interpreting the News

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.
A.P. Foreign Affairs Analyst

Some observers of the Chinese situation are taking the view that the realistic course for the United States is to withdraw recognition from Chiang Kai-shek and be ready to deal with any new regime.

This will hardly be done—it would violate moralities which are in the long run just as important to American policy as are more concrete considerations. America is not likely to do anything much for the time being. But these observers are alarmed over the prospect that the Communists may take over all or most of China while the United States continues to recognize what may become a "paper" regime.

They discount any possibility that Chiang or any Kuomintang group can save the Nanking situation. The widespread peace movement in China is taken as anticipatory of Chiang's collapse.

COALITION POSSIBLE

It does seem probable that Communist occupation, rather than peace through negotiation, will be the upshot. European observers are saying that the Communists can occupy Shanghai and perhaps Canton in a few months—two, three or four. They point out, however that the Communists may not want to occupy Shanghai immediately, since assumption of responsibility for feeding the city only means trouble.

Hopes for a coalition government are not entirely dead. They rest largely on the belief that the Communists would be willing to pay something for a cloak of legality. If Chiang were gone and some of his more liberal heirs could make a deal it might ease America's position for a time.

There are those who believe that the Communists will be forced by daily pressures to operate on a Nationalist rather than an international basis. That they will have a vast job of economic reorganization if they are to maintain any sort of hold over the people, and that they will do business with whichever foreign power can help them most.

"SMALL 'C'"

They believe that ideology has no influence in China compared with the influence of hunger. That Communism in China is still spelled with a small "c," that it has as yet no real connection with international Communist imperialism as exemplified by Russia, except in some lip service extended by its leaders because they have no other outside force to "butter up." Relations between the Chinese Communists and the Russian where they are in direct contact—in Manchuria—are reported poor to bad.

I don't put too much stock in that. Or in the idea that Mao Tse-Tung's regime would take an "Asia for the Asiatics" line against the international Communist line. The Russians moved into China in 1921 and organized the Communist Party which merged with the Kuomintang for the revolution of Sun Yat Sen and Chiang. They became a splinter movement when Chiang moved on to Nanking. The Cominform sent in European organizers, and the split with Chiang developed into running warfare by 1927. The thread of Russian connection has been there ever since, and the possibility that relief ships could buy off Mao Tse-Tung, or that he would "pull a Tito," has always seemed to me to be rather slim.

To Investigate Plane Crash Fatal to Two

WINNIPEG, Jan. 4 (CP).—Four members of an investigation party set out today by plane for the isolated spot 300 miles northeast of here where two men met death in a plane that exploded in mid-air and burned after the wreckage plunged to the ground.

The dead were Vic Yasinsky, 34, Lac Du Bonnet pilot employed by Eco Exploration Co., of Winnipeg, and Brother Ulderic Petlit, 32, of the Franciscan Fathers rectory at Lac Du Bonnet and a native of Granby, Que.

Brother Ulderic had been a "pleasure passenger" aboard the plane which had been assigned to transport stores to Island Lake, where the crash occurred, and then to Lingman Lake, Ont. Island Lake is near the Manitoba-Ontario border. The plane had been supposed to return to Lac Du Bonnet by nightfall.

Those making up the investigation party were Cpl. A. Watkins of the Lac Du Bonnet detachment of the R.C.M.P.; Dr. I. W. Smeath, coroner for Lac Du Bonnet; an inspector from the Transport Department and M. G. Smerchanski, manager of the Eco Company.

Mr Smerchanski said the plane had carried extra gasoline and that any mid-air explosion would have been "pretty bad." The plane was reported to have crashed at a spot near a Hudson Bay store and the wife of the store manager witnessed the tragedy.

...Oddities...

SPOKANE, Wash., Jan. 4 (AP).—The chimes of stately St. Aloysius Church are leading a double life.

The chimes peal out three times a day from loudspeakers high in the church steeple.

Lately, though, the loudspeakers have been going right on when the chimes are finished. Snatches of radio programs come booming out when the silver chimes are silent.

Residents of the Gonzaga University District have heard horse racing information, news broadcasts and even police calls.

A radio technician offered one explanation:

"There must be a short circuit or improper shielding in the amplifier," he said. "That might make the amplifier detect radio signals—turn it into a radio receiver for a few seconds and send the signals back out over the speakers."

BUFFALO, Jan. 4 (AP).—An outraged citizen telephoned police:

"I don't mind getting a summons for speeding, but I do object to some smart officer signing it 'good and swift.' Tell those wise guys to stop the clowning."

A quick check showed the summons had been written by Patrolmen Walter J. Swift and Robert H. Good, assigned together in a patrol car.

BOSTON, Jan. 4 (CP).—Little Jack Horner would have a tough time getting this pie into a corner. It took a block and tackle to move it yesterday after it was baked by a Quincy baker for the Massachusetts Union Agricultural meeting in Worcester.

It weighed more than 500 pounds and was made of apples, cranberries and sugar, with 150 pounds of each item.

The crust alone took 80 pounds of flour, 40 pounds of water, shortening and salt.

BIG MACKEREL CATCH

The annual Canadian catch of mackerel averages about 40,000,000 pounds with a market value of nearly $3,000,000.

King, Queen Enjoy Drive

LONDON, Jan. 4 (CP).—The King today left Buckingham Palace for the first time since the announcement of his illness on November 22.

Accompanied by the Queen, he went for a pre-lunch drive of about half an hour in Hyde Park.

The King and Queen leave for their country residence at Sandringham, Norfolk, Saturday.

The King's physicians, attending him for faulty blood circulation in the legs, announced this week they would permit him to engage in "limited activity."

Will Decide Oil Trading

VANCOUVER, Jan. 4 (CP).—V. A. Simons, secretary of the Vancouver Stock Exchange, said tonight the Exchange will "have definite advice in 48 hours" as to future trading here in shares of Home Oil, Ltd., Canadian oil producer.

Will Resume Treasure Hunt

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP).—A treasure-hunting expedition will leave here Friday for Cocos Island, 310 miles southwest of Costa Rica, to resume search for $60,000,000 in gold and jewels supposedly buried by pirates.

The announcement came from James A. Forbes, Riverside, Cal., as he took off by plane for the Central American country to arrange for laborers to help dig for the treasure.

Forbes said this will be the fifth expedition to hunt the treasure. One he financed last year returned empty-handed.

HARBOR FROZEN

POULSBO, Wash., Jan. 4 (AP).—Poulsbo Harbor, a branch of Puget Sound, was frozen over today for the first time in the memory of old-timers.

Poisoning Kills Six After Party

GLASGOW, Jan. 4 (CP).—Six persons died today of poisoning following a party attended by about 30 persons here last night.

Another 18 are in hospital, 12 of them described as "seriously ill."

Police said preliminary investigation indicated that poisoned liquor was responsible for the deaths. They said that meat pies were the only food provided at the party.

Bottles and glasses found in the house where the party was held were analyzed at police headquarters.

No One Hurt As Roof Falls

BEMIDJI, Minn., Jan. 4 (AP).—Thirty child skaters escaped unhurt late today when part of the roof of the Bemidji Sports Arena caved in.

Only a half-dozen children were directly beneath the main collapse. The others were in a warming house over which most of the roof remained intact.

William Spencer, building caretaker, heard loud cracking in timbers overhead and cleared the half-dozen skaters from the rink just as the timbers started to fall.

Cause of the collapse was not determined.

Nations Getting Marshall Plan Aid Told End Not Near in Food Austerity

PARIS, Jan. 4 (Reuters).—The European Administration of the Marshall Plan today warned people in dollar-aided countries that austerity in their food standards is likely to go on "for some years ahead."

After examining the estimates of the separate Western European countries, the Council of the Organization for European Economic Co-operation declared in a report:

"Some consideration of the planned patterns of food consumption may well prove inescapable. Indeed it appears not unlikely that Western Europe may have to be content for some years ahead with a pattern of food consumption not dissimilar from that which exists today."

The report has been adopted by the 19 countries receiving Marshall Plan aid.

The Council of the O.E.E.C. prepared the report for submission to the United States Congress. Congress will soon vote on the "long-term program" of E.R.P.—intended to make countries of Europe independent of the Marshall Plan in three years' time.

Previously each recipient country had been asked to submit their own estimates. The O.E.E.C. has found most of them are too optimistic about the standard of life their people will be able to enjoy without Marshall Plan dollars.

A rather more realistic view of possibilities would be a consumption level about 5 to 10 per cent higher than now. Europeans may perhaps get nearly as much bread, fats and milk as they did in prewar years, the committee said. But consumption of meat is expected to be about 10 per cent less.

The secretary-general of O.E.E.C., Robert Majorlin, called a press conference in Paris today to explain the reports. He said Congress would expect E.R.P. countries to aim at independence before 1952 by taking measures under four main headings:

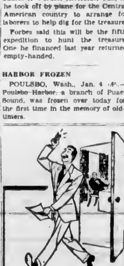

1. Stabilization of currencies and prices. Inflationary pressures must be brought under control.

2. Intensification of exports efforts, including lower prices and the building up of the tourist trade.

3. Creation of new sources of supply of food and raw materials to replace sources paid in dollars.

4. Reduction of imports. The participating countries have over-estimated the probable availability of supplies, under present conditions, from countries not requiring payment in dollars.

Pender Island Couple to Make Home in City

In a Yuletide setting at Pender Island United Church, well-known old-time families of the island were linked, when Marjorie Louise, youngest daughter of Mr and Mrs S P Corbett, became the bride of Elmer Newton Bowerman, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Bowerman, on December 28.

Rev. H. J. Bevan of Vancouver, officiated.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an after-five frock of sky blue taffeta with small off-face grey model hat. She carried a horseshoe bouquet of delicate pink rosebuds and white chrysanthemums.

Miss June Bowerman, sister of the groom, in a shell pink moire taffeta frock, attended the bride. Her arm bouquet was of chrysanthemums, a shade deeper than her frock.

Leslie Bowerman was his brother's best man.

For her going-away ensemble, the bride wore a grey broadcloth coat and matching accessories with her wedding frock.

Mr. and Mrs. Bowerman left immediately after the ceremony for a honeymoon in Vancouver and Seattle. After a short stay on Pender Island on their return, they will come to Victoria to make their home.

London Artists' Model Comes to Victoria

By EILEEN LEAROYD

WELL-KNOWN London artists' model, Marjorie Cornforth, is now in Victoria adding to the growing colony which is making Victoria more and more an important centre of art.

Miss Cornforth, who landed in Canada only seven weeks ago, is fortunate in possessing that rare quality for which artists are ever searching—a mobile face. Mood and expressions flit across her countenance like ripples on water.

"I don't know what it is," she smiled with her Mona Lisa look, "but all my artists told me there was something in my face they couldn't get."

In the half hour the interview took, she ran the visual gamut of Mona Lisa, lost waif, aged cynic, blank wall, haunted soul and back again to the enigmatic 15th century Da Vinci model.

—Colonist Photo.

POSED FOR EPSTEIN

Miss Cornforth has posed for many celebrated painters, sculptors and photographers.

Frank Dobson, R.A., one of Britain's foremost sculptors, now nearing 70, has employed Marjorie frequently.

"Dobbie was very hard to please," Marjorie said. "He is a perfectionist and strives endlessly for the smallest details. Although, frankly, I could never recognize myself in his figures. He exaggerates everything."

Marjorie was the model for one of his latest works, recently shown in the outdoor exhibit at Battersea Park, London.

Miss Cornforth also modeled for Wallace Wood, R.A., well-known English painter, and for the renowned German sculptor, Albert Epstein, whose "Genisis" caused a world-wide stir a few years ago.

ENERGETIC LIFE

Modeling in London was a busy life. Most popular models received legal contracts, Miss Cornforth continued, so that there are no days of idle waiting for calls. When not working for individual artists, she modeled for schools such as Slades, the Royal College of Art and the Anglo-French School.

She began her modeling career at the age of seven, but did not become a professional until she was 20.

"I wouldn't recommend modeling for everyone," Marjorie stated, "as a class artists are hardly the most considerate people. They are so absorbed in their work they forget all about you.

"I have posed for as long as an hour and a half, although actually over an hour is regarded as illegal. I have often had to have a massage to loosen my muscles after posing over the hour."

She has been staying with an aunt, Mrs. Isabel Bell, in Sidney, and is hopeful of modeling prospects here.

"If I was good enough for Dobson and Epstein, perhaps the local artists will like me, too."

Navy and Royal Blue Lead Coating Colors

By ANNE YATES CLARKE

Because there is no radical silhouette change, the fabric of your Spring coat or suit is all the more important. To give variety and interest to our fashions that are for the moment fairly quiescent, designers are using new textures and are making use of color in new ways, so that the clothes look as fresh and different as if we were at the height of a fashion change as we have been in recent seasons.

There's an affinity between texture and silhouette that you'll see when you shop for the new clothes. Apparent, too, is the tendency toward lighter weights, whether for coats, suits or dresses. Along with the smooth-surfaced fabrics that have been popular for many seasons, there's a new interest in more textured surfaces. It is best expressed in crepes for dresses, and is newest in exciting new Eponge fabrics for coatings—fabrics that are somewhat reminiscent of the boucles and ratines of the '20's.

An important trend, too, in coatings and suitings, is toward yarn dye mixtures, those blends of light and dark shades of grey or of beige. The famous Forstmann mills are now weaving many of their fabrics in this combination, even the dress crepes. Somewhat in the same key is the fashion for two tones of the same color—costumes done in "tone on tone." Molly is one suit designed that shows a whole series in two shades of grey, while other coat houses such as Philip Mangone make a few costumes in this combination.

Watch for the twills and reps, too. Starting with the clear-finish worsteds such as gabardines, which are really classics, coatings and suitings both go into really corded effects such as twillcord, repteen and selena, each with a different but distinctive ribbed finish.

Not to be overlooked are the fleecy coatings, seen in lovely pastels and some darker colors for Spring toppers and longer casual coats. All the designers love them, and make them into luscious wraps. Especially beautiful is vilrosa, a lightweight alpaca fleece which is used by most of the high-style designers in everything from white to a lovely rusty raspberry shade called polonaise.

The color story, to be brief, puts navy at the top of the list for coats, dresses and suits . . . the navy and royal family leading all other colors in high-class woolens. Next comes the cocoa and beige, greige or brown family in everything but dresses, in which black ranks second and the brown-beige family third. Black accounts for many dress-up suits, but grey (not including the popular yarn-dyed wools) is the next choice of the buyers with colors following. Nearly every designer handles the color palette differently, so that it is hard to generalize except to say that the mauve, pink and lilac tones are nearly everywhere, and that most colors are muted rather than clear.

It is impossible to tell a fabric story without mentioning men's wear fabrics in light weights, which are used for women's suits and coat dresses with such good effect. In neat patterns, they are almost as popular as are tweeds and plaids, which tend this year to be a bit quieter in pattern, with plaids not quite so large.

Strike Action Brings Threat

LONDON, Jan. 4 (Reuters).—Labor Ministry officials today warned London's busmen that their Saturday-afternoon strikes for extra pay could be regarded only as "a challenge to constitutional authority.

This followed last night's ultimatum by the London Transport executive that busmen who strike again next Saturday will be dismissed.

About 30,000 busmen at 82 of the 110 garages in London staged an unofficial strike last week-end in support of their claim for extra pay for Saturday afternoon work. They claimed traffic then was increased by greater attendance at sports events caused by the granting of the five-day-week in many industries.

The strikers decided to stop work every Saturday afternoon until their claim was met. The union supports the demand for increased pay, but has declared the strike action unofficial.

Viennese Woman to Write Book on Manitoba Indians

WINNIPEG, Jan. 4 (CP).—Mme. Maria Huldschinsky, Viennese-born writer, describes life in a Sudanese harem as a "dream of Oriental beauty—a peace which Western civilization will never know."

She is here gathering information about Manitoba Indians, and intends to write a novel about them. Mme. Huldschinsky has been in Canada for about a year after living in North and West Africa for some 15 years.

In 1933 she left Vienna with her husband, Dr. Kurt Huldschinsky, and after his death eight years ago decided to remain in Africa, as she was unable to return to her native Austria.

"I'm going to call the hero of my book Manitoba, after the great Indian spirit Manitou." She is interested in writing about the remnants of the Western Canadian Indian tribes.

Last March she displayed about 100 paintings and statuettes at an exhibition at McGill University. The paintings were a visual account of a trip she undertook on commission for the Sudan Government Railways up the Nile, through Egypt, Sudan, Uganda, Kenya, Tanganyika and back over the Red Sea hills to Port Sudan.

NOT AS PICTURED

The harem is not as most Westerners would picture it, says Mme. Huldschinsky. She was house director for the harem of Sir Sayed Abel Rahman Pasha in the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan.

"Despite Hollywood, it (the harem) is not a hodge-podge of beautiful dancing girls, lusty male slaves, intrigue and murder . . . I found it aesthetic, peaceful and most moral."

Sayed wields immeasurable spiritual power over thousands of Mohammedan followers, Mme. Huldschinsky said. He is the son of the famous old mahdi whose whirling Dervishes gave General Gordon of Khartoum so much trouble in the closing years of the 19th century.

Sayed has no more than four wives permitted by Mohammedan law, but the members of his harem include his aged mother, his daughters-in-law his marriageable daughters and granddaughters, other female relatives and hundreds of maidservants.

Isolated from the turmoils of the Western world behind high walls and grilled gates, these women live an almost idyllic life in "nobleness and peaceful harmony," Mme. Huldschinsky said.

Implementing Plan Viewed

LONDON, Jan. 4 (Reuters).—James Griffiths, chairman of the Labor Party and Minister of National Insurance said tonight that by the end of 1949 the Labor Government would be able to claim it had implemented the program on which it was elected in 1945.

"In these days, when democracy is struggling for survival, the example of a democratic Government that fulfils its pledges will hearten the friends of social democracy everywhere in the world," he declared in a new year's message to the party.

Griffiths called for an increase in the party membership from the present 600,000 to 1,000,000 by 1950.

Committee chairmen will attend the next directors' meeting on January 12 to draw up plans for the year's activities. It was decided to resume the bi-monthly card parties on the second and fourth Fridays of each month.

Following the business meeting, Mr. Emery showed films depicting the development of Canadian industrial power.

Port Trustees Discuss Plans

PORT ALBERNI, Jan 4.—Mrs Joseph Skipsey was re-elected chairman of the Board of Alberni School District No. 70. Mrs. Skipsey served on the Alberni School Board for nine years, prior to consolidation, and has been a member of the new board since its inception.

The board received from the City of Port Alberni a conveyance of land which has been chosen for the site of the proposed new junior-senior high school.

E. C. Outten, janitor, injured when a detonator cap exploded in coal he was handling, will return to work Thursday. The board learned the coal company and Workmen's Compensation Board is investigating.

Mrs. Willo McLeod was appointed to the temporary staff for Sproat Lake school.

The board was advised that officials of the Department of Education, scheduled to meet here soon for conference on the new school plans, would be further delayed.

At recent civic election, an insufficient number of candidates were nominated to fill school board vacancies for Port Alberni. F Archer was appointed a member for a two-year term. His name will go to the Department of Education for approval.

Attend Party

GANGES, Jan. 4.—The annual party organized by the Salt Spring Island Golf Club, and held under the management of Mrs Lois Hayes, Miss Shirley and Miss Bryda Wilson, at the club's headquarters, proved a success. More than 100 members and friends joined in the festivities. The clubroom was decorated in a color scheme of red, green and silver.

NEW YEAR
NEW HOPES
NEW JOBS
NEW OPPORTUNITIES

In many ways the most favored part of Canada, British Columbia enters the New Year with new problems to solve, new challenges to meet, new opportunities to develop.

Taking stock of our position we might well remember these things:

1 Ours is the fastest growing province in Canada.

2 We need to attract outside capital to make jobs for our new citizens—but we ourselves in British Columbia are more competent than in the past to finance and manage our own industrial and commercial expansion based on our rich resources. We must invest, venture and show enterprise.

3 Despite uncertainties and fears, the energy and initiative of people around the world have attacked war damage and reduced shortages, but demand for goods and services remains urgent. Greater abundance for the greatest number must be our goal.

4 We must do our part to re-build normal world trade by buying from our customers, keeping our prices competitive, improving the quality of our products.

5 High living standards are impossible without good machinery. British Columbia industrial management and employees will benefit by constant improvement in the machinery of production.

During the fiscal year 1949, H. R. MacMillan Export Company Limited and its subsidiaries plan to make new capital expenditures in excess of $8,750,000.

This company has progressed by practicing, insofar as it could, the policies above set forth. It has done the greater part of its business competitively with world suppliers in distant lands, has sold to the Canadian market at prices generally below world prices, has reinvested more than 88 per cent of its net profits in British Columbia job-creating enterprises and has borrowed on its credit to finance new projects making more efficient use of the forest resources it converts to useful products.

To its more than 5000 employees, its customers and the citizens of British Columbia, who benefit by vigorous enterprise, it pledges a continuance of these policies.

H. R. MacMILLAN,
President.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE WORD "SLAY"

Those who light-heartedly indulge in the modern slang "you slay me," by which they mean that they are impressed or amused or surprised in the extreme, must surely assume a less painful end than is implied in the origin of that word slay.

In the days when this word had its start, there were no such refinements of civilization as the electric chair or the gas chamber to minimize the agony of execution; the pangs of death were likely to be more severe and of longer duration. "Slay" is an old Teutonic word, coming to us out of the Old English "slan" or "slee." It derives from the Anglo-Saxon "slean," meaning "to strike, to beat."

"Slay" in varied forms and spellings exists in numerous modern Teutonic languages—Danish, Swedish, Gothic, German—and with the same literal meaning, namely "to strike" or "to beat." That is the word's secret, it meant to beat to death.

It is thought that "slay" may have some kinship with the Latin "lacerare," to tear to pieces, which is out of the Greek word that gives us "lacerate." Another interesting way of being slain, and something of a commentary on old-fashioned ways!

Home Designed for Solar Heat Little Drafty During Winter

DOVER, Mass., Jan. 4 (NANA).—Two women, a man and a baby boy moved into their new home here on Christmas Day—a house so modern that it doesn't have any furnace!

The new home—which resembles half an old-fashioned New England red barn—depends for its heat on the sun.

For three bitterly cold days, the little family has been living with crossed fingers, hoping that it's going to turn out to be a comfortable home.

So far, there are some doubts. The floors have been cold and they won't dry when they are washed unless supplementary electric heat is turned on.

SHADE WINDOWS

The cold also comes through the big double-paned picture windows that face the south and double shades have been provided to draw at night.

Like many another house, this one is a bit drafty, and they've stuffed rags around doorsills to keep out icy breezes.

But these are more than the simple problems of a family adjusting itself to a new home. And, since this is an entirely new project and two of the members of the family are noted scientists, it's likely that present deficiencies can be corrected.

The solar heating system in the house is the brain-child of Dr. Maria Telkes, the noted Hungarian scientist who devised the method by which sea water is changed into fresh drinking water. For eight years, she has been a research associate at Massachusetts Intitute of Technology.

The experimental house was designed by Miss Eleanor Raymond, Boston architect, and has been built at a cost of about $20,000—$3,000 for the heating system—by Miss Amelia Peabody, wealthy sculptress, on her Dover estate.

TWO STORIES HIGH

The house faces the south and is two stories high on that side. It has only one story on the north side, with a steeply pitched roof and only one small double window.

The front of the house seems to be largely of glass. The entire front of the second story is of double-glass plates and behind these is an 800-feet-square sheet of black metal. This is the trap which draws heat from the sun's rays.

Electric fans draw off the heat from the trap and send it through ducts to so-called heat bins throughout the house. The bins store the heat at 90-degree temperature in a cheap sodium compound known as sodium sulfate dekahydrate, which melts as it gets warm.

When the chemical gives off heat, it solidifies into crystal form again. It can hold and give off heat for ten to 12 days.

Each bin is capable of heating two rooms and the heat is blown through registers. It is a humidified type of heat which, the occupants of the house say, never makes you feel hot and yet you aren't cold, either. It's biggest flaw to date is that it won't dry wet floors.

NEEDS SUNSHINE

The new house's major test will come when, and if, there is a cloudy spell lasting a dozen days so that there is little sunshine whose heat can be stored.

All under one roof, the house contains a garage, living room (with large open fireplace—just in case!), a modern kitchen and two bedrooms. The living room is 14 by 25 feet, each bedroom about 13 feet square.

The outside wall on the first floor of the south side of the house is mostly of double-paned windows which admit sunlight and heat directly into the house by day. This apparently supplements the heating system because, today, while the thermostatic control was set at 60 degrees, a hall thermometer at eye level read 74 degrees.

There is no cellar beneath the house and, although there is insulation, this may cause the coldness of floors and their inclination to remain damp, as has occurred in other houses of similar construction.

For Summer use, there is an ingenious ventilating system with permanent screens which never have to be taken off or put on.

The appearance of the house, viewed from the road, is unusual. It is one room in width—long and narrow—and the large heat trap on the second floor is an odd sight to those more used to conventional buildings. It is so different, in fact, that you would not take it to be a dwelling on first sight.

But it's probably the most important house in the temperate zone, right now, and it may revolutionize home heating—when it's perfected.

ORIGIN OF DOUKHOBOR

The name Doukhobor means "spirit fighter" and was applied to the sect by orthodox priests with the implication that they warred against the spirit of God.

British Producing Jet Bomber With Speed Near Sonic Barrier

LONDON, Jan. 4 (NANA)—The British are making a prototype jet bomber. The new craft will have a speed twice that of existing types and will fly at greater heights. At that speed it will be on the edge of the sonic barrier where strange things happen to the flow of the air and affect lift and control. At that height, even small work in the straight pressure chambers; and fruits or damage would be likely to have disastrous results.

The industry has squired a lot of knowledge about jet aircraft from fighters like the Meteor and the Vampire and about multi-jet aircraft from the experimental flying wing built by Armstrong Whitworth and know as the A.W. 52. It has also accumulated a good deal of experience of high flying from the under way is taken to refer to a type which was described some time ago by the Ministry of Supply as having two jets and aiming at speed about twice that of the Lancaster bomber. The top speed of the Lancaster is 310 M.P.H.

GAS TURBINES

There is no information yet about the power of the two gas turbines that will be fitted in the new bomber but it will probably exceed that of the Rolls-Royce Nene (4,500 pounds static thrust) gas turbines.

On this evidence the first British jet bomber might fall into the fastest bomber class. The strategic jet bombers will come later. That will mean that the present night bomber force of the R.A.F. will continue to fulfill the requirements of strategic bombing. By recent advance in the air exercises the duties of strategic bombing still can be admirably performed by that force. It remains capable of "fogging" the defences and has shown itself extremely hard to catch by night.

CHANGE BOMBING

In tactical bombing, the situation has been changed by the development of the jet fighter. Tactical bombing has largely to be done by day. The tactical bomber has to run the gauntlet of the fast fighter as well as of anti-aircraft fire. Its task is to disorganize communications in the rear of an enemy army and prevent reinforcements and supplies from reaching the front line. This isolation of the battlefield was brilliantly accomplished in the World War by Allied bombers during the invasion of Normandy and later during the Allied advance into Germany. It will have to be done again if British or Western European forces should become engaged in a land campaign. And it will have to be done in the face of 600 M.P.H. fighters.

A fast tactical bomber thus appears to be an essential part of the air equipment of any system of Western Europe defence. Whether it is indeed no statement that a big order has been placed. The Government has still be delaying that until flying trials have given satisfaction, but laying down a production line is a process which occupies about a year. To get on with preparations for production would be a prudent move in the uncertain circumstances of the times.

Falling Attendance Noticed in N.H.L.

President's Message Acknowledges Fact—Suggests Rules Changes May Add Interest

By BERT ALLEN

MONTREAL, Jan. 4 (AP).—Signs of the Times. A veiled admission by National League President Clarence Campbell that all is not perfect in hockey's major circuit, that crowds are falling off a bit, and that maybe a few rule changes would be in order.

Campbell's views are carried in the form of a New Year's message in the weekly paper "Hockey News."

The message said in part . . . "It would be folly to ignore the warning signs which the year 1948 has provided. The standing room only sign may not be so prominently or so frequently displayed in the year which is ahead of us. There are signs that Mr. Public is becoming more discriminating about where he spends his entertainment dollar and is increasing insistence that he get full value for it.

"Up to the present he (the public) has accorded our sport a fairly high rating, but it would be a mistake to take for granted that he will continue to do so.

"Greater solicitude for his welfare, comfort and convenience must be exercised to attract his continued patronage, but above all he must be provided with an attractive, skilful and exciting spectacle."

DINK PONDERS

All of which brings this comment from Dink (Montreal Gazette) Carroll:

"So far as we know, this is the first time any word has come out of the league head office intimating that the game as it is played today is anything less than perfect. Up till now, whenever rule changes were suggested which make hockey a more attractive, skilful and exciting spectacle, official league comment has always been:

" 'There can't be anything wrong with a game which plays to sellout houses all around the circuit.' "

RUGGED BUT CLEAN

While on the subject of hockey rules, Baz (Montreal Star) O'Meara thinks that N.H.L. referees, especially Bill Chadwick and King Clancy, are too fast with the whistle when handing out penalties to Maurice Richard and Kenny Reardon of Montreal Canadiens.

Says Baz: "True these rugged players (Richard and Reardon) neither ask nor give quarter, but there is such a monotony of motion in the manner in which officials thumb them off while overlooking greater misdemeanors by others, that it cannot escape the observation of even the least partisan of supporters."

Louis Resents Look Into Fiscal Status

CHICAGO, Jan. 4 (AP).—Heavyweight Champion Joe Louis today sued Look Magazine for $500,000, alleging he was libeled in the current issue of statements about his financial condition.

His counsel, Truman K. Gibson, Jr., said Louis declared he was not interviewed by any representative of the magazine before the article was published, and that no interviews were given by his manager or the treasurer of Joe Louis Enterprises.

The Superior suit claims the article stated untruthfully that Louis is always broke, insolvent and owes $175,000 in back income taxes.

Day Unaware Rookie Faced Traffic Charge

TORONTO, Jan. 4 (CP).—Coach Hap Day of Toronto Maple Leafs said today he hadn't known Ray Ceresino was facing a careless driving charge when he ordered the 19-year-old Port Arthur winger to Leafs Farm Club, Pittsburgh Hornets.

Ceresino was sent back to the American Hockey League Club by the National Hockey League coach last night. Today he failed to appear in court on the charge and a warrant was ordered for his arrest. Bail of $100 was forfeited.

"He's down there to play hockey," said Day. "I understand it won't be necessary for him to appear."

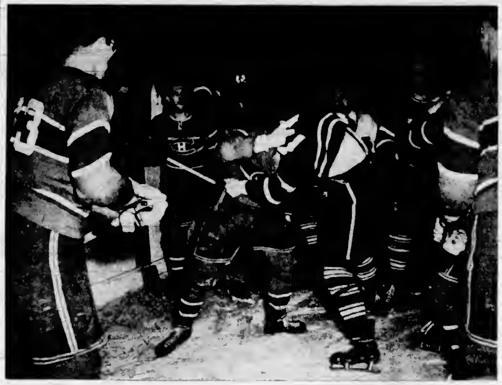

When J. K. Brower appeared for the absent player today, he told Magistrate J. L. Prentice that Ceresino was ordered to board the 8 p.m. train for Pittsburgh "or else."

"Well, we told him to be here, or else," retorted the magistrate, refusing a request that the case be heard in absentia.

Brower said in an interview tonight Ceresino was expected back soon and that the warrant would be held and served upon his entry to Canada.

"Oh, my—I gotta have a talk with my coach," said Ceresino, in a telephone interview tonight from Pittsburgh. He said he had understood he wouldn't have to show up in court.

Reardon, Gardner Continue Battle Sans Sticks

U.S. Invites European Soccer XI's

NEWARK, N.J., Jan. 4 (AP).—Plans were being worked out today for three of the top soccer teams in Europe to make a tour of the United States this year.

The three teams will be the famous Belfast Celtic Club, which United States officials have been trying unsuccessfully for some years to lure to the United States, the Djurgarden Club of Stockholm, and a Scottish International eleven.

The Belfast Celtic team will arrive in May and will participate in a 10-game tour. The Scottish team will be the first from that country to visit the United States since before the war.

Stampeder Ace Leads Kilburn By Ten Points

CALGARY, Jan. 4 (CP).—Standings remained virtually unchanged last week in the race for individual scoring honors in the Western Canada Senior Hockey League.

Statistics released tonight by League President D. P. McDonald show veteran Dune Grant of the third-place Calgary Stampeders holding a comfortable 10-point advantage over Colin Kilburn of Edmonton Flyers. The Allan Cup champion Flyers however, continued to dominate the scoring statistics. Coach Frank Currie's smooth-passing forwards hold down six of the top 10 positions.

Acrobatic Bev Bentley of the front-running Regina Capitals still is in front for netminding honors. The Regina goalie leads in shutouts with four, and in the lowest goal against average—3.074 a game.

The leaders:

India Saves Draw In Cricket Match

CALCUTTA, Jan. 4 (Reuters).—The third test between the West Indies and India petered out in a tame draw here today after Mushtaq Ali, India's opening bat, had given his side a fighting chance of victory with a brilliant 106. The first two tests were also drawn. Two more remain to be played.

India, set 431 runs to get for victory, had scored 325 for the loss of three wickets when the match ended.

Aussies Cool On Japanese

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP).—The Australian Lawn Tennis Association has refused a Japanese invitation to send an amateur tennis team to Japan this Summer, the Australian News Bureau here said today.

Sir Norman Brookes, president of the A.L.T.A., was quoted as saying the whole matter "was out of the question under the present circumstances."

The tone of the refusal, the News Bureau said, indicated that it would be several years before Australia and Japan would resume athletic relations.

IT BEATS ME

By JIM TANG

Failure to receive co-operation from the Greater Victoria Boxing Association for the staging of the second annual Daily Colonist Vancouver Island Golden Gloves Championships on a strictly charity basis, The Colonist has canceled plans to sponsor the ring event this year.

Staged for the first time last year under the sponsorship of this paper, which first planned the event in 1947, the show was a tremendous success with over $1,100 being turned over to the Queen Alexandra Solarium. It was hoped and planned at that time to make this an annual event with all proceeds each year going to the Solarium, but succeeding events have made this impossible.

Officials of the G.V.B.A., feeling that their clubs should share in the proceeds, were unwilling to go along with the championships on the original plan and were desirous of promoting the event themselves. Inability to agree on this caused The Colonist to forego its sponsorship and preliminary arrangements already made have been canceled.

For years it has been the accepted thing that all Golden Gloves proceeds go to some worth-while charity. This is what has made the Gloves boxing's best promotion. Interest created by the Gloves has almost always boosted the ring game and amateur clubs have been able to reap their own financial rewards from their own shows as a result.

It is understood that the G.V.B.A. is planning to stage the event themselves, but under new sponsorship, with the proceeds to be divided between some charity and the association.

In severing its connection with the Golden Gloves, The Colonist would again like to express its appreciation to Cmdr. R. P. Kingscote and the Royal Canadian Navy, who played such a big part in making the first Gloves such a success. Any part this paper may have played in giving sport a boost and in helping the Solarium by originating the event is more than enough reward. It will also do its part to make succeeding Gloves a success.

Cleveland Indians Voted 1948's Outstanding Club

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP).—The world champion Cleveland Indians were voted the outstanding team of 1948 in the United States in the annual poll of sports writers by The Associated Press.

Of the 98 voting, 28 named the Indians as their No. 1 choice, 27 as their second choice and 16 picked them third. That gave the Tribe a total of 154 points.

Michigan's powerhouse football team, which finished No. 1 in The Associated Press' year-end poll, gained runner-up honors with 122 points. The Wolverines drew down 17 first-place votes, 27 seconds and 17 thirds.

The United States Olympic squad finished third with 86 points. The Olympic team, which won the overall Olympic championship in Europe last August, received 24 first-place nominations, four seconds and six thirds.

Cleveland's mighty Browns, All-America Conference football champions for three consecutive years, were fourth with 67 points.

The Indians' rise to the heights can be traced back to one day—Monday, October 4, 1948. That was the day the Tribe, with their backs to the wall, made baseball history. Only the previous day, the Indians' dream of their first pennant in 28 years had been all but wiped out.

On Sunday, October 3, Hal Newhouser and Detroit Tigers had sent the Redskins back on their heels with a humiliating 7-1 defeat that shoved them back into a season-ending tie with Boston Red Sox. The Tigers had added insult to injury by whomping Bob Feller, Cleveland's ace, with an assortment of base hits that sent the fireball right-hander to the showers early in the game.

The odds were all against the Indians that memorable October 4 day. All they had to do was beat the murderous hitting Red Sox in Boston's Fenway Park — and with a pitching staff that was tired from working in and out of turn.

REMEMBER BEARDEN?

Manager Lou Boudreau surprised the baseball world by nominating Gene Bearden, his freshman southpaw, to start. Bearden rewarded his manager's faith by pitching a brilliant five-hitter. Boudreau himself enjoyed his greatest day. He banged two home runs and two singles and drew a base on balls in his other time at bat for a perfect day at the plate.

The Indians won in a breeze and went on from there to whip the Boston Braves in six games for the world championship — their first since 1920.

Sold to Solons

JACK PALMER

Scrappy second baseman of last season's Victoria Athletics who has been sold to Sacramento Solons of Pacific Coast League, according to report in current issue of St. Louis Sporting News. With Sacramento to name manager at Yakima, Palmer's sale brings up thought that Palmer may get W.I.L. managerial post if he does not win regular berth with new club. Palmer batted .301 last season, getting 182 hits and driving in 93 runs in 604 official trips. He scored 112 runs, had 40 doubles, six triples, 18 home runs and a total-base output of 288.

6,500 Watch As Flyers Wallop Leafs

EDMONTON, Jan. 4 (CP).—Edmonton Flyers tonight trounced Lethbridge Maple Leafs 7-3 before 6,500 fans to take a tighter hold on second place in the Western Canada Senior Hockey League.

Flyers went ahead 3-1 at the end of the first period, notched another while holding off Leafs during the second stanza and outscored them 3-2 in the final frame.

Veteran Freddy Smitten paced Flyers to victory with two goals—one of them unassisted in the third period—while Elmer Kreller got a goal and two assists. Andy Clovechok, Oord Wait, Billy Maher and Alex Pringle were other Flyers' marksmen.

Gib Nordin, with one goal and two assists, led Leafs' attackers aided by Bill Boorman with a goal and Maxwell with a goal and an assist.

RESUME WORKOUTS

The Y.M.C.A. Track and Field Club will resume regular weekly workouts at the Y.M.C.A. gymnasium on Monday at 8 p.m. All members are requested to attend.

Canucks Pass Loop Trailers

VANCOUVER, Jan. 4 (CP).—Vancouver Canucks tonight moved out of a cellar-place tie with Seattle Ironmen in the Pacific Coast Hockey League by swamping the third-place Tacoma Rockets 6-2.

Tacoma opened scoring in the first period on a goal by Fern Perrault, one of the P.C.H.L.'s top point-getters, but were trailing 2-1 by the end of the second period following tallies by Bob Drainville and George Horbe.

In the third session the Canucks outscored Tacoma four goals to one. Andy Lambrecht notched Tacoma's counter while Vancouver marksmen were Bill Carse, Ivan Wilson, George Hunchuk and Wimpy Jones.

Former Stars Ready For Vic High Squad

Manager Ernie Cook's star-studded line-up of former Victoria High School cagers is foregoing all practice sessions prior to Friday night's gala benefit game against the current Vic High quartette at the High School gym. Instead, the Grads will rely on experience and knowledge of the game to carry them to victory, and if that isn't enough they should overcome their youthful opponents by sheer numbers.

Proceeds of the game go towards completion of the Victoria High School Memorial Stadium. Less than $1,500 is required to finish the project and the benefit affair should considerably lessen this amount.

High School Principal H. L. Smith, who watched most of the veteran players during their climb to stardom, will officially introduce players of each team to the spectators.

Doug Peden, coach of the Alumni squad, will have the services of Art and Chuck Chapman, Tommy Little, Tommy Forbes, Stan Moore, Johnny Craig, Joe Ross, George Robinson, Alex McKeachie, Bill Wallis, Hank Rowe, Ollie Goldsmith and Busher Jackson.

Coach Laurie Wallace, assisted by Gordon Hartley, is putting his High School proteges through stiff workouts in preparation for the contest.

Sculler Tops Aussies

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP).—The Australian News Bureau here said today Mervyn Wood, Olympic and Henley Diamond Sculls winner last year, has been voted Australia's athlete of 1948. In 12 years of competition he has won the Australian National Sculls title three times.

Radiomen Decide Mythical Honors

VANCOUVER, Jan. 4 (CP).—Two hockey teams, which haven't yet played a game, will battle this month in a best-of-three series for the "Okanagan Simon-Pure Outlaw League championship."

Radio Station CJIB at Vernon issued a challenge today to Station CKOV in Kelowna. Don Warner, CJIB sports commentator, claimed there was "a lot of noise" from the Orchard City backing the Kelowna Packers, cellar-dwellers of the Mainline-Okanagan Senior "B" Hockey League.

First game in the series will be played January 12.

Compton's Slow Bowling Stops South African XI

CAPETOWN, Jan. 4 (Reuters).—South Africa ran up a first-innings score of 356 today in reply to England's 308 as the third test cricket match continued. England had scored 85 runs for one wicket in the second innings when play ended.

The match ends tomorrow. England won the first test and the second was drawn.

The home eleven at one time had a score of 298 for three wickets. Then Denis Compton, who took five wickets with his left-arm slow deliveries, started a collapse. The last seven South African wickets fell for only 58 runs.

The turn came with the breaking of the third-wicket stand of 190 by Bruce Mitchell, who scored 120, and Dudley Nourse, who tallied 112.

Italy Makes Plans To Enter Olympics

ROME, Jan. 4 (AP).—Italy is already making plans to participate in the next Olympic games and the Winter Olympic sports in Norway.

The Italian Olympic committee called for full Italian participation in both the Winter games at Oslo and the general Olympics at Helsinki.

—Colonist Photo

Weatherman has not been co-operating with Victoria's golfers in usual manner this Winter but he has failed to keep all of them at home. With city courses still covered in snow, some of hardier members of city's divot-digging clan are still to be found chasing sport's most aggravating pellet. Pictured at Gorge Vale yesterday are three die-hards attempting to putt through snow. From left to right are Al Collins, Joe Pryke (putting) and Bill Betteridge.

By GRANTLAND RICE

"First thing you know," Gene Fowler said, "we'll be having unlimited substitution for pallbearers. We'll have one platoon taking the coffin in, the other bringing it out."

We are not quite ready for that move yet, but the coming vote among the football coaches and rules committee looks to be headed that way for football.

Ted Payseur, director of athletics at Northwestern, feels Big Nine coaches or a majority of Big Nine coaches—beg pardon, Michigan State—Big Ten coaches are in favor of unlimited substitution.

"The vote would be six to four or seven to three," director Payseur says. "There are a few who want the rule modified. Bernie Bierman is one of these. This smaller group would like to have only two or three substitutions made at one time. But I believe a majority would like the situation to remain just as it is today.

The situation stands as follows:

For unlimited substitution — the majority of coaches, possibly the rules committee—all football players who can't handle both offence and defence.

FANS IN OPPOSITION

Against the same—a majority of the public, a majority of football writers and the limited number of football players who can handle both jobs—offence and defence. Also all former football stars.

"Are you sure the public is against the present rule?" one leading coach asked. "Why is it then that Michigan used the double-platoon system and played to the largest consecutive crowds in history—game after game—that drew from 80,000 to 86,000 spectators? I know Michigan crowds liked it.

"I can see nothing against the two-platoon angle," he continued. "I'd rather watch 11 men go in and come out than to watch over 200 substitutions of one, two or three men."

It is all very badly mixed up. They tell you the double-platoon system gives more football players a chance to play. Yet Navy used more men than Army in their game. Columbia and Cornell, in one game, used more than Army or Michigan.

In place of resting his men, Frank Leahy doubled up. He had Fischer playing guard and tackle, on offence and defence, while Hart played tackle and end.

The ones who hate the free substitution most, including the double-platoon system, are the old football players, especially those who played well on both offence and defence. To these men, the 1948 system was an abomination to be ended at once.

REVERSE TROUBLE

The main trouble many ball-players have is putting on weight during the off season.

Ralph Kiner, the Pirates' home run hitter, is working the opposite way. Kiner lost 20 pounds during the 1948 season. "I should weigh 195 pounds," he said. "I ended the season at 175. I didn't feel strong at that weight."

This is quite the opposite angle from a number of athletes, including more than one on the Yankees.

When you consider the matter, the home-run duel between Ralph Kiner and Johnny Mize, the kid and the veteran, is one of the most amazing things in sport.

They tied in 1947 at 51 home runs. They had anxious fans looking at Babe Ruth's 60 mark. Everyone seemed to be worried except Ruth. This last season, Kiner and Mize again finished in a draw at 40. For the two years, each has turned in 91 home runs.

Kiner wasn't hitting as well through 1948 as he was in 1947. His home runs fell off and so did his batting average.

"You've got to have something back of you to hit with," Kiner said.

Johnny Mize had the needed displacement. Babe Ruth was a big man. So was Jimmy Foxx and so was Hank Greenberg. Pound for pound, Mel Ott was the best of them all.

NATIONAL TAKES OVER

It seems odd to have the National League taking home-run garlands through two successive years. The three top men have been Ruth, Gehrig and Foxx. Hack Wilson slipped in as the National League leader, although Gehrig should be placed back of the top three on a general average.

Last season the American League looked to Ted Williams, but the tall and willowy Red Sox fell away to 25, far back of Joe DiMaggio and Joe Gordon. DiMaggio made a gallant effort to check Kiner and Mize, but fell short by two.

Unless Williams gets back in the home-run groove, it is no certainty that any American League slugger is going to supplant Kiner, a serious, hard-working ballplayer.

Speaking of the weight angle, we once asked Babe Ruth just what he weighed when he hit his 60 homers.

"I weighed 250 pounds," Babe said, "the heaviest I ever weighed. I had plenty back of me when I landed."

Auto Sports Club To Meet Tomorrow

The annual general meeting of the British Columbia Automotive Sports Association will be held tomorrow evening at 8 in the British Public Schools Club according to an announcement by President Charles Flitton.

Keglers Have Eyes on Records As Arcade Alleys Resume Play

With the festive season over, all city bowling leagues are getting back into their usual stride, and individual keglers are shooting for new marks in the maple topping sport.

Here are some of the scores which bowlers at the Arcade Alleys will be trying to surpass:

In the City Senior Tenpin League, Al St. Martin and Art Porter, both of Arcades, share the high single mark for the league with 242's, while Harold Paulding of Pacific Meat holds the high three-game record of 634.

Porter tops the list of averages with 180, a single point ahead of Paulding. Andy Palmer of Gorge Hotel follows with 178. Jim Ferrie of Pacific Meat and Bill Holmes of Arcades sport 170 ratings.

Fred Hardisty of Argosy Coffee Shop clings to the high single score for the Commercial League with a 231 game, and Manning Lumber's Jim Cambrey, Jr., tops the three-game totals with 586.

Freddy Welsh of Bone's Imperials and Len Murrant of Eagles are tied at the head of the averages with 164 each, followed by Cambrey and Eddie Borde, Colonist, at the 161 level.

A 678 score for three games gives Mary Conlan of Arcades the lead in that department of the Women's Tenpin League, and Dominion Meat's Jessie Vasheresse sets the single-game pace with a 232 score.

Judy Hibberd of Harte-Andrews and Mary Conlan are co-leaders in the averages, with 160. Jessie Vasheresse is next in line at 155, and Mary Welsh of Bluebird Cabs has a 154 rating for fourth position.

Lindsay Loses To Gooding; Jamel Scores

PORTLAND, Ore., Jan. 4 (CP). — Jimmy Gooding, 127, of Portland, got off the floor tonight at the count of nine in the second round to go on and win a ten-round decision over Kenny Lindsay, 127, of Vancouver.

The bout was one of the preliminaries in a professional boxing show here.

Lindsay had been staggered with a blow to the stomach in the same second round in which he floored the Portlander with a right to the head. Gooding recovered, however, and was boxing well when the bout was finishing.

Jerris Jamel, 172-pounder from Vancouver, won a decision over John L. Sullivan, 172, Portland. The Canadian was about out on his feet in the sixth, but had piled up a heavy point tally in the earlier rounds.

In the other six rounder, Hal Robbins, 144, Vancouver, decisioned Paul Kennedy, 147, Longview, Wash. He had Kennedy down for a count of eight in the last session.

Webfoot Star Goes to Rams

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 4 (AP). — Drafting of Norman Van Brocklin, Oregon quarterback who passed the Webfoots into the Cotton Bowl, was announced tonight by President Dan Reeves of the Los Angeles Rams.

Van Brocklin, a married athlete from Walnut Creek, Calif., has another year of college eligibility but Reeves said the Webfoot star indicated he planned to take his degree next June and capitalize on his football reputation.

Van Brocklin in ten games of the 1948 season completed 66 of 139 passes for a 48.9 per cent average, a total of 1,010 yards and seven touchdowns. He led Oregon to the Pacific Coast Conference co-championship with California.

Coast Conference Bans All Bowls Except Rose Bowl

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., Jan. 4 (AP). —The Pacific Coast Conference tonight in effect banned all New Year's Day bowl games except the Rose Bowl.

Directors at their annual Winter meeting here approved a ruling providing that the football season must end no later than the second Saturday after the last Thursday in November.

It does not apply, of course, to the Rose Bowl game. The measure, as well as two others adopted, was pointed at the University of Oregon. The Conference decided that any student enrolled in a physical education course which includes football and basketball would not be permitted to compete in intercollegiate athletics in those two sports for the succeeding year or season.

Oregon was criticized last year when it was discovered that some 16 Webfoot football players were in its famous "P.E. 190" course and some critics from rival universities claimed that their lessons seemed to emphasize football.

Stubbys replaced Harknett Fuel as leaders in Gibson's senior Tenpin League last night by sweeping three games from the Fuelmen, who dropped to fourth position as a result of the setback. Watson's Men's Wear captured a pair from Smilin' Ben's to move into a second-place deadlock with their opponents, while the cellar-dwelling Strathcona Cafemen scored a 2-1 win over Toggery Shop.

Andy Palmer of Watsons put together a three-game total of 626 to come within half-a-dozen points of Ron Wilson's league mark for the season. Andy Spouse of Strathcona Cafe with 608 was the only other bowler to top the 600 mark during the night's play. The two Andy's switched positions for the night's single-game honors, Spouse with a 234 and Palmer with a 226. Jack Howell of Toggery Shop followed with a 223 effort in his final game.

Veeck Refuses To Take Risk On Don Black

CLEVELAND, Jan. 4 (AP).—Don Black is through pitching for Cleveland Indians, Club President Bill Veeck said today.

"If he is determined to try it again, I won't stand in his way," Veeck told a reporter.

"I'll give him his release, but I would not accept the responsibility of Don trying to pitch again."

Black, who collapsed during a game in September, is recuperating from brain surgery performed to alleviate a blood clot condition. He was unavailable for comment.

Black had said previously he had been assured of another chance to pitch for the Indians.

Sport Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP). — There are strong indications hereabouts that efforts are being renewed to organize the "Poison Ivy" League formally. . . . That "Poison Ivy" tag was handed a group of a dozen or so Eastern United States colleges which didn't quite fit into the Ivy League back when that "Ivy" designation still was informal. . . . They have tried to get together several times — the last about five or six years ago . . . and this effort may fail for the same reason that doomed previous ones. Schools like Colgate, Syracuse and Penn State, which should be the standard bearers, aren't showing much interest. . . . Right now Temple and Rutgers apparently are leading the way.

MONDAY MATINEE

Joe Beggs, veteran relief pitcher who never has a losing season in major league ball, is interested in an Eastern college baseball coaching job. You can blame the American Bowling Congress, in part, for the suspension of Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League activities this season . . . The circuit found it couldn't operate without the Atlantic City franchise and Atlantic City couldn't operate with the A.B.C. taking over the Auditorium for some four months.

Huge Loss Forces Team to Withdraw

MONTREAL, Jan. 4 (CP). — St. Hyacinthe Flyers officially withdrew from the Junior Amateur Hockey Association here tonight after reporting to league officials they were unable to continue owing to a $7,000 deficit.

The withdrawal is effective tonight, but all previous games played by the Flyers this season will be deleted from the official standing. Two extra games will be added to the remaining schedule for each team in the circuit.

Hoopla Clinic Applications Being Received

First applications to attend the basketball clinic being conducted by Art Chapman at the Victoria High School gym starting January 14 were received at The Colonist sports office on Monday.

Peter Winter, 13, and Jim Lewis, 17, were the first to send in their applications. They were followed by Ron Stonier, 15, and Leroy Fevang, 12, who mailed in their applications yesterday.

The clinic, which is being backed by The Daily Colonist, will be held every Friday for eight weeks with Chapman in charge. He will be assisted by several other well-known basketball stars. It is open to any city youngster between 12 and 20 years of age, inclusive. Three classes will be held each night. Between 5 and 6, the age group of 12-14, inclusive, will receive instructions; 15, 16 and 17-year-olds will be instructed between 6 and 7, and the 18-20 group will be handled in the following hour.

Prizes will be offered in each age group for the pupil who shows the most improvement, the pupil who assimilates the most knowledge and the best player. Awards will be made by the instructors.

In addition, a hoop-shoot will be held, open to all attending the clinic. Additional prizes will be given to those showing the greatest accuracy from the foul line. Further details on the hoop-shoot will be announced later.

Application forms should be filled out and mailed to Art Chapman, care of Daily Colonist Sports Department.

Four Gamblers In Custody For Bribe Try

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (AP).—District Attorney Frank S. Hogan announced tonight that four men had been arrested charged with attempting to bribe a Brooklyn youth who is co-captain of the George Washington University basketball team.

The arrests culminated four months' investigation by New York City detectives after the player had reported a bribe offer made last August, the district attorney's office said.

The player was identified as David Shapiro, 25, junior guard on the team.

The arrested men, whom Hogan said will be charged with violation of that section of the penal law covering bribery of participants in amateur sports and with conspiracy, were listed as:

Joseph Aronowitz, 35, a cloth cutter; Philip Klein, 34, a linotype operator, both of Brooklyn, N.Y.; Jack Levy, 40, Miami, Fla.; and William Rivlin, 43, of New York.

Team officials declined to comment on the details of the reported bribe attempt as described by the player.

George Washington defeated Manhattan College, 71-63 in an upset. Manhattan, an early 7½-point favorite, became a 16-point favorite shortly before game time.

Plan Rugby Games If Grounds Ready

All three divisions of the Victoria Rugby Union will resume league play this Saturday, ground conditions permitting, with Canadian Scottish and J.B.A.A. matched in the first division feature at Macdonald Park. Union officials will view the various playing fields tomorrow and state definitely whether or not Saturday's schedule will be carried out.

Second match set for Macdonald Park is a play-off game between Oak Bay Wanderers and Boys for the first-half championship in Division II. 5th Regiment and H.M.C.S. Naden will engage in another second division tilt at Colville Road grounds.

Division III matches have been slated between Navy and Wanderers at Windsor Park and Scottish Cadets and Bays at the Work Point Garrison field.

Amateur Sport Delegates Meet With National Council Friday

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—The National Council on Physical Fitness will have no recommendations to place before delegates from national sports governing bodies when it plays host to representatives of at least 18 groups here this week, officials said today.

With a number of contentious questions, particularly amateurism, on the agenda for discussion at the January 7-8 meeting, the council members will mostly sit back and listen.

"Our main function," an official said, "is to provide neutral ground on which the various parties can express their views."

Discussions probably will centre around a 10-point agenda which was announced in Toronto in November, although J. H. Ross of Calgary, president of the council, has made clear that the conference may alter the agenda.

One matter is the question: "Should amateur sports be subsidized from public funds?" However, the council and the Federal Health Department will make no proposal or offering.

"After the meeting is over, we may be in a position to make some statement," the official said.

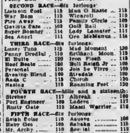

On still another point, the council has taken a flat, hands-off stand. This is the question: "Is there need for a national co-ordinating organization for sport?"

A council resolution passed some time ago says:

"The N.C.P.F., the fitness division, and the Department of National Health and Welfare have no desire for, nor will they accept any responsibility for governing sports in Canada.

"Their objective is to lend every possible assistance to enable the various sports governing bodies to co-ordinate their efforts and to assist them in co-operating with each other so that the work of all may progress."

1948 Outstanding Turf Season For Western Canada Horsemen

WINNIPEG, Jan. 4 (CP).—Favored by excellent weather from May until September, Western Canada's 1948 racing season, embracing 79 days of action at Winnipeg, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon and Regina, was "a winner."

Western Canadians wagered $8,438,321, an increase of more than $347,000 over the previous year's 80-day season, circuit officials said today. Horsemen collected purses of $456,600, an increase of $52,650 over the 1947 mark.

Westerners capped major laurels in owner, trainer and riding lists and trotted out some outstanding horseflesh.

Gordon O'Bray of Calgary led the owners and trainers with $16,240 in purses and 31 winners. Lee Williams of Edmonton followed with purses totaling $12,780. Earl Robertson, trainer for Williams and other interests, was second leading conditioner with 16 victories.

A California jockey, Stan Connell, booted home the most winners but three Western riders were not far behind. Connell brought in 53 winners while Emil Roy, Rex Leavitt and Jimmy Sivewright tied for second place with 40 each.

VICTORY GIFT TOPS

The toast of the Sport of Kings was Scotty Kennedy's sensational Victory Gift, a talented Western-bred filly. The trim daughter of Omar's Gift was "Horse of the Year" on the Prairies.

She captured the $5,000 added Canadian Derby and the West's richest purse, the $8,000 Canadian three-year-old championship. She started ten times on the Prairies and the Pacific Coast, galloping to seven triumphs and three seconds to earn $21,405 for her owner.

Heading the outstanding two-year-old crop was Stewart Riddle's champion, Big George. The gelded son of Spanish Main-Sure Cure copped the Winnipeg Futurity, Calgary Juvenile Stakes, Salisbury Juvenile Stakes at Saskatoon and Hutchinson Juvenile Stakes at Regina.

FORT GARRY RUNS WELL

Meadowbrook Stable's Fort Garry, who equalled the track record of 1:43 in capturing the Whittier Park Handicap, was the star of the handicap division.

Officials, headed by Presiding Steward George W. Schilling, were in charge as ample horses were on hand for all eight Prairie meets. Addition of four two-year-old stakes to the roster of major events saw more juveniles in training than in any other year.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR
A wish from us to all folks, everywhere. May those in not good health gain strength to enjoy their lives more fully in 1949. May those who have not enjoyed prosperity in the past fully prosper in 1949. May we see no war in this new year and may harmony amongst men and nations gain headway. May the shadow of unemployment diminish so that those who would be employed can be employed and may we people and our governments find means in this new year to better house and supply some of our veterans and old-age pensioners. The impossible cannot be done but humanity should never stop trying to progress when so many better things are possible.

Power Cut Asked On Mainland

VANCOUVER, Jan. 4 (CP).—A B.C. Electric Co. spokesman said today some of Vancouver's heavy industries have been asked to curtail power consumption to avert a power shortage in the Lower Mainland.

Suggested curtailment would be in the peak-load hours between 4.30 and 5.30 p.m.

"If these industries co-operate in reducing their loads we hope to avoid further restrictions," he said.

Cold weather and the resultant depletion of power reservoirs, plus the unusually high demand were the reasons given.

Cabinet Considering Bill For National Forestry

By TOM GREEN
Colonist Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, Jan. 4—Legislation for a national forestry act is under serious consideration by the Cabinet, with final decision delayed awaiting negotiations with the provinces.

Constitutional aspects of the proposed measure which it is hoped to bring down at the coming sessions of Parliament are giving the Federal Government some concern. So the provinces are to be consulted, if some of them have not already been sounded out.

Major-General George R. Pearkes, V.C., member for Nanaimo, has strongly urged on the floor of the House of Commons the urgency of Federal action to help preserve British Columbia's forests.

Plans are for the contemplated legislation to operate on a voluntary basis, and the purpose of the bill is uniformity of provincial forestry legislation, conservation and development of forestry research.

Mechanics of the measure in its presently drafted form are for Federal grants to the provinces for insect control, fire protection and reforestration. These grants would be given by the Dominion on the understanding that the provinces receiving assistance will inaugurate and enforce a policy of directional cutting of Crown timber limits.

Further decision on the proposed measure has been deferred until after the Government-sponsored conference of 16 pulp producing countries under the food and agricultural organization of the United Nations. The conference is scheduled to be held in Montreal early next March.

Advice to the Government here is that the measure such as the National Forestry Act, presently contemplated, could in co-operation with the provinces in a period of 40 to 50 years double the capacity of the industry and maintain it in perpetuity.

Creston Man To Face Trial

CRESTON, B.C., Jan. 4 (CP).—Jerrard McNanny, charged with manslaughter in the fatal pre-Christmas stabbing of bookkeeper Harold McKinnon in the Creston Valley Co-operative store today was committed for trial at the Spring Assizes at Nelson.

He was committed by Justice of the Peace D Bradley at a preliminary hearing.

On a second charge of assaulting H E G. Thomander the same night, the Creston butcher was remanded for eight days or while the prosecution prepares its case.

The trolling boat Julie Lu, reported yesterday as missing with two men aboard, has been in Seattle since December 8, the Coast Guard has reported. The troller was operated by Clayton Harris who was accompanied by Nicholas Anderson.

Ice Jams Quebec Harbor

Sussex Sails

The British cruiser Sussex has sailed from Hongkong for Portsmouth, England, and decommission. The Sussex was escorted to the harbor entrance by her sleek new replacement, H.M.S. Belfast. The 21-year-old Sussex, flagship of the British occupation force in Japan for some months after the war, will arrive in England February 21.

Takes Cruise

Admiral Sir William Tennant, commander-in-chief of the American and West Indies Naval Station, has left in the 8,100-ton cruiser Glasgow for a three-month cruise which will include the Falkland Islands, British possession claimed by Argentina.

The time used is Pacific Standard for the 120th Meridian west. It is counted from 0 to 24 hours (from midnight to midnight). The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the table the tide rises or falls continuously during two successive tidal periods without turning.

Last Guests Enter Old Hotel

VANCOUVER, Jan. 4 (CP).—The old Hotel Vancouver, one of Western Canada's most famous hostelries, today welcomed its last guests—the wreckers who will tear it down.

After 52 years of playing host to the world's notables, the stately old building will become what is said to be the largest wrecking job ever undertaken in the British Empire.

For the next eight months air hammers will echo through the empty corridors of the 12-storey, 565-room giant, in a job estimated to cost $2,000,000.

The building was formerly owned by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the present owners, T. Eaton Co., are reported planning a new department store on the site.

From its opening in 1887 until its official closing as a hotel in 1939, the building housed many of the world's most prominent people.

In postwar years it served as home to ex-servicemen and their families.

Salt Herring

Negotiations are under way between The Netherlands Government and the Soviet Union for the sending of 26,500 barrels of salted herring to the Russian zone of Germany, according to the United States Embassy at The Hague, Netherlands. Negotiations are also progressing in connection with the sending of 75,000 barrels of salted herring from Holland to the British and American zones in Germany.

Sailing Delay

Sailing of the 81,000-ton Cunard White Star liner Queen Mary for New York from Southampton was postponed another 24 hours for inspection.

Earlier she had been granted a certificate of seaworthiness following new tests on the 100 tons of concrete plugged into her stern after her grounding off Cherbourg on Saturday night.

The concrete was poured to plug leaking plates caused by the loosening of rivets.

It had been hoped the liner would sail today on the mid-day tide.

The liner's 1,740 passengers slept peacefully in their beds through the feverish preparations to make her seaworthy in time.

Fifteen passengers disembarked and booked passages to the United States by air.

The ship, which was brought into Ocean Dock after inspection in Cowes Roads, had a few buckled plates and some loose rivets.

Officials of the Cunard White Star Line said today they were convinced that the grounding at Cherbourg was due to the liner's catching an underwater cable in her anchor as she prepared to leave.

While efforts were being made to clear the cable, a gust of wind drove the liner aground.

Both Retire

Winding up two long seafaring careers, the master of the Empress of France, Captain H. D Davies, and her purser, Graham Crawford, will clear from St. John for the last time this week before retiring on pension.

The 20,000-ton Canadian Pacific liner will sail from there Wednesday, call at Halifax Thursday and is scheduled to dock in Liverpool next Wednesday, January 12.

Captain Davies has 32 years service in 22 Canadian Pacific vessels to his credit.

He was at one time chief officer on the Empress of Britain and was aboard her when sunk by enemy action. He was at the ceremonial parade when India severed the last ties of British rule in 1947, and commanded the Empress of Australia, still in Admiralty service, when she brought the last British troops out of that country.

No Word

Last December 13, Hon. H W Mayhew, Federal Minister of Fisheries, announced that dredging of Victoria's Inner Harbor would "start immediately."

That is the last that has been heard of the matter, and to date no start has been made. It was claimed at the time that necessary dredge equipment had finished flood rehabilitation work on the Fraser River and would be brought here.

George Paulin, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce harbor committee, said yesterday his group had had no further word.

New Industry

An excellent opportunity for an industry lies in the fishing and marketing of Philippine spiny lobsters, according to a report from the United States Fish and Wildlife Service.

Spiny lobsters abound on the Philippine coastline and are at present caught on a small scale by Philippine fishermen. Their method of catching the lobsters, through spearing, results in the immediate death of the shellfish. Dead lobsters decay rapidly and are soon unfit for human consumption. It is hoped that nets and traps, whereby the lobsters will be landed alive, will soon be introduced.

Business Slump Shown For Canadian Shipping

Marine News

Halifax's biggest ship operator is worried about the future of Canada's merchant marine.

Harry Mathers, youthful head of Acadia Overseas Freighters, says that unless something is done "we won't have much of a merchant marine left."

"It is very serious now and getting more serious all the time. We cannot compete with any flag on the free market because of our higher costs."

Business was declining because of high operating costs and world-wide currency troubles. He blamed increased operating costs by Canadian ships on higher crew wages, delays caused by trouble with union crews and a high rate of desertion and sickness by crew members in foreign ports.

Gus Genites, port agent for the Canadian Seamen's Union (T.L.C.) said that the Canadian cost of living made "high wages" necessary for seamen.

DOES AGREE

"However," he said, "the union does agree that the industry is in an unhealthy state, and the main cause . . . is the lack of a properly orientated national shipping policy for Canada."

Mr. Genites said the union "many times" had told Mr. Mathers "improved living conditions and adequate food would pay more dividends." But he declined to elaborate.

So far, however, no serious decrease in Halifax's over-all port business has been noticed. During 1948, ships of 55 companies arrived here, more than in 1947. Cargo handled was about the same as in the previous year and the number of passengers landing here reached 80,000, compared with about 49,000 the previous year. No figures are yet available for 1948, but about 2,000 ships—more than 900 of them deep-sea vessels—arrived at Halifax in 1947. About the same number cleared port.

MANY IDLE

During the Summer, several ships operated by the Acadia Line—now flying the Nova Scotia flag for the first time in 100 years—were idle because of lack of cargo. The 10,000-ton Yarmouth County was sold December 15 to Maritime Compania de Navigatin and sailed from Halifax flying the Panamanian flag. Renamed the Santa Despo she carried a number of Canadian crew members.

Mr. Mathers did not say why the ship had been sold or whether others would be disposed of. The line has 11 other ships, most in the 10,000-ton class.

A November sailing of Acadia's 7,157-ton Hants County was delayed seven hours while C.S.U. crew members held a "protest meeting" on "the scuttling of the Canadian Merchant Marine through sale of Canadian ships to foreign interests."

At that time, Mr. Genites said, nine Canadian ships had been sold to "foreigners."

Port facilities, meanwhile, are being kept in top condition. The National Harbors Board spent $200,000 on maintenance during 1948 and Board Chairman R. K. Smith said in an interview here $250,000 had been reserved for maintenance in 1949.

Tenders are expected to be called early in the new year for a $3,000,000 concrete and steel pier.

Busier Ships Said Need

Canada's seaborne exports in 1947 totaled 18,001,435 tons . . . and Canadian ships carried only 19.9 per cent of this tonnage.

The Dominion's seaborne imports for last year totaled 9,836,283 tons . . . Canadian ships carried only 27.9 per cent of this total.

These figures have been released by the Canadian Shipbuilding and Ship Repairing Association. In 1947, United Kingdom ships carried 43.5 per cent of Canada's seaborne exports; United States ships, 21 per cent, and ships of other registry, 15.8 per cent.

United States ships carried 45.9 per cent of Canada's seaborne imports; United Kingdom ships, 7.2 per cent, and ships of other registry, 18.9 per cent.

The association bulletin is the second in a series which suggest Canada take a greater role in the shipping picture of the world.

Due Soon

Ss. Loch Avon, of the Royal Mail Line, is scheduled to return here from the Mainland to pick up a large cargo of lumber before proceeding directly to the United Kingdom, according to Shipping Agent Eric Marshall. The vessel is due about January 14.

She called here last week with a general cargo from England, and from here went to Vancouver. Under the command of Capt. W. W. Lowe, the combination cargo-passenger vessel is carrying seven round-trip passengers.

Escapes Fire

A Vancouver fisherman escaped uninjured Sunday when his fishing troller Keego I was destroyed by fire at Buccaneer Bay, it was learned yesterday.

Jack Morrison said today he attempted to fight the blaze with an extinguisher but abandoned the boat when another craft went to his aid. The Keego was towed from Buccaneer Bay and beached nearby.

The fire, believed to have started from a motor explosion, burned the $25,000 boat to the waterline.

Seeks Tuna

New commercial fishing grounds, especially tuna will be sought off Ecuador by the fishing boat Kiska when it leaves Astoria this week on an exploration trip.

This was announced by the Columbia River Packers Association, Inc., a firm which has been pioneering fishing in South and Latin American waters.

In a moment he was at her side, lifting her bodily. Then all at once wondered precisely what to do, for even as he stood there with her he heard a resounding "boom!"

It brought a sudden exhultation to his heart. He knew, at least he felt certain, that his plan was beginning to work. The first drum of gasoline uptrail had already been engulfed by fire, had heated quickly and exploded like the bomb it was. Above the pall now he could see the blacker up-rushing of gasoline smoke and flame. Quickly he heard a second "boom!"

Plainly he could not carry her home, nor even go back in the truck the way he had come.

"Oh Monty, Monty!" she was sobbing now, "Are you all right? Is Sue . . . ?"

"Sue is safe, my dear. Safe at the post. She had thought you could make it. She didn't realize the grave danger. Nobody did!"

"You did, Monty! You—you came! Oh!"

He discovered that he had waded into the lake water with her, just automatically carrying her there. She clung to his neck like a frightened child, and even in this moment of extreme stress he found that experience exalting.

Oddly, now, he did not feel the terror he had known a few minutes ago. In fact there was no sense of fear in him at all. On the contrary he felt like a conqueror and he gazed back with satisfaction to note that the fire had passed the end of the lake and was all along the edge of the trail. They swam toward the lake centre in order to get away from falling sparks and out of the smoke that stung so miserably at their eyes. He aided her by towing her easily with one hand.

In a moment the final bombardment began. At least it sounded like a bombardment. The gasoline drums were blocking the fire's onrush exactly as he had reasoned they might. He hoped that they would delay its progress until the fire righting crew could arrive up the hill and take charge.

When he had half towed the tired girl three or four hundred yards into the water, he sounded carefully near a group of old tree stumps and found a place to rest. It wasn't shoulder-deep to him there, and she could sit on a stump very near him. For a long moment they just relaxed and breathed deeply. He stood with his arm tight around her waist, holding her very close and gazing with her at the spectacle of fire. Presently, though, he became conscious of her nearness.

"Rosemary!" he suddenly murmured, then paused to swallow hard. "A change has come over me this hour. There is something I must say!"

"Monty!"

"I have ceased being a—a gentleman, my dear! Hereafter it is to be a fight! I shall no longer stay in the background."

"Monty, are you—? I don't understand!"

"I am serving notice, my dear, that I love you so powerfully I cannot stand it! I don't care if you do love King. I expect to challenge him. I shall devote every ounce of my energy, every moment of my nights and days to competing with him. I shall—"

"Oh Monty!"

"—Shall ask only that you give me a little time, a little time! A chance to court you as a man should do and prove my love, Rosemary. I shall make myself whatever you want a man to be. For you, my darling, I will completely rebuild my life and—"

"Monty!"

"—And make myself into an outdoorsman or a physical worker or any sort of a husband that might appeal to your delightfully romantic soul! I have been frantic with love of you since the moment you came into my life, and I have wasted these weeks because I was somehow in awe of you and permitted a man in uniform to—oh Rosemary, can you grant me a little more time, for a fresh start? Can you permit me to—?"

He had worked into an enthusiasm and intentness which made him speak very rapidly, standing close to her and gazing right into her eyes. All at once she stooped over to kiss him firmly on the lips.

"Oh! Oh I say, you—!" He gazed at her in consternation.

"Monty, I have been trying my best to interrupt you! You are all excited!"

She kissed him again—and then quite boldly slipped off the stump and clung tightly to his neck, dangling there with most of her lithe young body submerged.

"If you l-let me down, Monty, I'll prob'ly drown! Hold me tight! Tight, Monty! . . . And kiss me again, will you Monty dear?"

"Rosemary! The fire! The—you—!"

He gave up trying to talk.

He had said his say anyway. His heart had poured out, quite involuntarily. He had taken no cognizance of their strange situation, of the devastation wreaked by the conflagration around them and of the wild drama still booming up the trail. They themselves were out of danger, out of danger and in each other's arms.

"Monty darling," she was nestled against his wet neck, his hair releasing tiny rivulets to run down her face and nose, "no, I will positively not give you any more time. I already love you. I told you I loved Bob King, but—Monty, that was just a momentary idea, a little romantic feeling I had when Bob sang songs to me. Monty, you can sing! You can do anything! I have been leaning more and more on you, trusting you and wanting you and loving you without realizing it! I have, Monty! I know it now. I could shriek in sheer joy!"

"I say — Oh I say, I could shriek for joy myself! I — I — Rosemary, may I just kiss you some more? May I? I shall!"

* * *

In time The Associated Press and United Press and other great telegraphic news services were to proclaim to the nation that Dr. Archibald Montgomery had used drums of gasoline for explosives to stop a forest fire. Coast to coast, his picture was on the front pages, his and that of the beautiful girl he had rescued.

Nearly one hundred men and C.C.C. boys had roared up to the Summit Trading Post with full equipment. The bursting drums cleared out a swath just right for them to step in and halt the progress of the fire.

Mr. McKee, who arrived to direct the battle, was astonished and delighted. The only important loss besides 90 acres or so of trees was the gasoline and the truck that had hauled it. By nightfall that day only a smouldering was left, and this was carefully guarded by an efficient mop-up crew busy with destroying the last vestige of flame.

When Sue, in virtual hysteria, had feared for Rosemary's life during the height of the excitement, she had taken her father's field-glasses and climbed to the roof of the trading post because from there she could catch a glimpse of the lake half a mile away. As breaks in the smoke permitted, the powerful glasses revealed something.

"Can you see them? Any sign at all?" Bob King called up.

"Yes! Yes, I can! And Bob?"

He didn't answer. He just climbed quickly up the roof too, with Mr. McKee at his heels. Together the three sat taking turns with the glasses, studying their magic two-eyed view.

"It's wonderful!" Sue breathed, sighing "Now he's kissing her again! I've known all along they were in love!"

"Yeah," Bob took the glasses now. "Sort of guessed it myself. Um. Well, come on down, Susie kid. They're safe, but I'm afraid you'll fall, and I got work to do."

"That's right," said Mr. McKee.

ANSWER TO YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

Little Stories for Bedtime - - -

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY AND NANNY HAVE A STRANGE RIDE

We never know from day to day
What wondrous thing may come our way

Things seem to just happen. That is all you can say about them: They just happen, that is all. Everything is just as it has been for a long, long time and then all in a twinkling something happens and everything is just as different as it is possible to dream. That is the way it was with Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse. They had just got to feeling thoroughly at home in their castle, which was a corn-shock in Farmer Brown's cornfield. It was the finest home they ever had had and they were looking forward to the most comfortable Winter of their lives when something happened to upset everything, and it was all so sudden that they had no time to do anything.

You remember that Danny had seen a strange and to him a terrible thing happening down at the other end of the cornfield one day. He had seen the shocks of corn there being carted away on a wagon by Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy. He hadn't told Nanny. He didn't want to worry her needlessly. For two or three days he had kept a sharp watch, but nothing more had happened and Danny had decided that the rest of these corn-shocks were going to be left right where they were, and had stopped worrying.

Then early one morning he and Nanny had been awakened by heavy steps and loud voices close by their castle.

"What is it? Shall we run?" whispered Nanny, shaking with fright.

"I don't know what it is, but we won't run. We'll stay right where we are and keep perfectly still. It is always best to keep perfectly still until you know you have been found," whispered Danny, and tried to appear brave, although he was as badly frightened as Nanny.

Suddenly there was a great tearing apart of their castle, the corn-shock you know, and before they could run that part of it in which their snug little home was built was lifted up, and then landed with what seemed to them a great crash on a lot more corn-stalks. Their house was on its side now and the doorway was closed. But even if it had been open they wouldn't have run out. They were too frightened to. They just clung to each other and didn't move.

More corn-stalks were piled on top and then after what seemed to them ages and ages they began to be shaken about and had a strange feeling that, though they were lying perfectly still, they were moving. They were. The wagon on which their castle had been thrown with the rest of the corn in Farmer Brown's cornfield was on its way to Farmer Brown's barn.

"Oh, oh, dear! What has happened? What is happening?" whispered Nanny.

Quite all in a flash Danny remembered what he had seen a few days before. Could it be that they were being carried away as he had seen that corn at the other end of the field taken away? He suspected that that was just what was happening. But he didn't tell Nanny this. Instead he tried to keep her courage up and in doing this he found that he felt better himself. It often is this way.

"No real harm has come to us yet," he whispered in one of Nanny's funny little ears. "Our house is still whole and no one has found us. We will just keep still and hope for the best. If no one finds us we have nothing to worry about."

Bumpity-bump over the frozen grounds went the wagon and thumpity-bump went the hearts of Danny and Nanny Meadow Mouse as they were jolted and shaken and jolted. Fortunately their bed was soft and so they were not as uncomfortable as they might have been. But it seemed to them that that jolting, shaking, bumping, thumping never would end. They heard the creaking of the wagon and this frightened them. They heard the stamping of the feet of the horses and this frightened them. They heard the voices of Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's Boy, and this frightened them. Would there ever be an end to it?

"I wish I were dead," sobbed Nanny.

"No you don't," replied Danny. "Everything is going to come out all right. You see if it doesn't."

And so they waited for the end of their strange ride.

Next Story: The end of the ride.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ♦	Pass	1♠	Pass
3♣	Pass	4♣	Pass
4♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

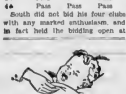

South did not bid his four clubs with any marked enthusiasm, and in fact held the bidding open at this point only because his partner's jump in a new suit was absolutely forcing.

West opened the heart four. The removal of dummy's blank ace put South in some danger, since he now could not afford to lead the ace and another spade. The enemy might win and draw dummy's last spade, in which case South would be exposed to two heart losers.

South solved this dilemma temporarily by leading the spade three and playing his own eight. West, however, won with the jack and shrewdly forced dummy to trump a heart. Now South was forced to start the diamond suit, and lead the king. West won and returned still another heart, which South had to ruff with dummy's ace.

South now entered his own hand with a club and laid down the spade queen. West won and locked declarer in dummy with a club. Now, when South tried to get out of dummy to draw West's last trump, he could not keep West's blank seven of trumps from winning a trick. The contract was doomed.

To repeat, this was a rather involved situation for South, and he was not greatly to be blamed for losing the hand. It was true that he could not lead out the ace and another trump from dummy, but his correct choice was not the three-spot, but the ten. Observe how this would have "fixed West." He would win with the jack and, as before, make dummy ruff a heart (with the three-spot). Now the diamond ace would be knocked out. Again, West would lead a heart, and dummy's blank ace would ruff. But now, when declarer entered his own hand with a club and laid down the spade queen, he would still have the nine and eight of spades and thus be able to draw West's seven-spot without danger.

Whole Town Gets Into Fight; Wards Off Knockout Blow

ELWOOD CITY, Pa., Jan. 4 (AP) — Two years ago this city was threatened with an economic knockout in the loss of its major industry.

But it bounced back on the nine count Today it still has its bread-and-butter industry plus a dozen new ones. And all because the whole town got into the fight against industrial oblivion.

The unified effort was centred in the Elwood City Industrial Corporation. The agency was hustled into existence in 1946 after the United States Steel Corporation indicated it would abandon the Ellwood City plant of the subsidiary National Tube Company.

That plant employs 4,000 in a city of 17,000.

Ellwood City, about midway between Youngstown, O., and Pittsburgh, made up its mind the solution was many diversified industries —it was too nerve-wracking to live and die economically according to the fortunes of a single plant.

So the Industrial Corporation was formed as an offshoot of the local Chamber of Commerce. It's goal was new industries For bait, it offered low taxes and an offer to lease-amortize new plants for newcomers.

Shares were sold at $100 each to raise capital. R J. Schill, executive secretary of the non-profit organization, estimates 40 per cent of the city's 17,000 residents bought some stock. One block is held by the United Steelworkers (C.I.O.) local

Makes Public New Series Of Documents

BUDAPEST, Jan. 4 (AP).—A purported memorandum from arrested Cardinal Mindszenty saying big Hungarian estates up to 500 or 1,000 acres should be restored was published by the Hungarian Government today.

The publication was a new installment of documents which the Government says were found in a metal box buried in the basement of the palace of the Roman Catholic Primate of Hungary. The Cardinal was arrested more than a week ago on charges of plotting against the Government, spying, treason and dealing in the money black market

The policy of the Communist-dominated Government is to break up big estates into small farms, but Cardinal Mindszenty was quoted as saying "the division of land in pre-war Hungary was not bad at all."

Cardinal Mindszenty, held incommunicado in jail, is not in a position to comment

Also published were several letters allegedly written to Cardinal Mindszenty by Msgr. Giovanni Montini, Vatican under-secretary of state, and other letters between high state and church officials concerning the disposal of St. Stephen's crown.

The crown worn by Hungary's canonized first king was taken by the Germans and recovered by the Americans. It now is in United States hands in Germany pending a decision as to its disposition. The Hungarian Government has charged that Cardinal Mindszenty interceded to prevent its being returned to the present Hungarian Government.

More Refugees Than Hilter Created Expelled From Behind "Iron Curtain"

NEW YORK, Jan. 4 (CP).—Expulsion of Germans from "Iron Curtain" countries has created more refugees than Hitler made.

This is revealed in a report by Elfan Rees, executive secretary of the World Council of Churches' Refugee Commission, to the Protestant and Orthodox international organization.

This is what Rees says in the report, published recently in New York:

1. There were some 9,000,000 "displaced persons" in Western Europe at the end of the World War. All but about 800,000 of these have been repatriated or resettled.

2. But there now are some 12,000,000 "uprooted and homeless" persons in Western Europe.

More than 10,000,000 of these are of German extraction, expelled from Czecho-Slovakia, Hungary, Poland, Yugoslavia, Romania, Bulgaria, and Russian-controlled areas of Austria.

The Potsdam Agreement of 1945 among Britain, the United States and Russia called for the "orderly" transfer to Germany of German population from Poland, Czecho-Slovakia and Hungary. It did not mention Yugoslavia, Romania and Bulgaria, where Communist-controlled Governments have expropriated the holdings of German peoples and cancelled their civic rights, turning them out of the country.

FEW ELIGIBLE

Of all European refugees, only a fraction are eligible for care by the International Refugee Organization, a specialized agency of the United Nations.

The I.R.O. constitution defines "displaced persons"—those eligible for I.R.O. care—as:

Victims of Nazi persecution; persons displaced from their homes as slave laborers; persons outside their home countries who, as a result of events since the war, are "unable or unwilling" to return to their countries of origin.

Persons of German ethnic origin are specifically excluded from I.R.O. aid.

Decrying the aid limitations, Rees warns that "the full impact of the refugee problem on Germany and on Western Europe has yet to be felt in all its danger."

A major factor in the refugee problem, Rees says, is that one-fifth of the total population of postwar Germany has been expelled from the Russian-dominated sector to fend for itself in Western Germany—the area under British, American and French control.

In some sections of Germany there are almost as many refugees as normal residents. For example, in Schleswig-Holstein Province, in the British sector, there are 1,250,000 normal residents and 1,200,000 refugees.

"There can be no real European recovery without overseas settlement and the burden of receiving lies as much on the New World as does the burden of giving which it has so generously accepted," says Rees.

In this connection, Canada has taken a leading role, receiving 5,448 refugees last October of a world total of 21,363. Canada's share was the largest number accepted by one country.

Some 70,000 Europeans have emigrated to Canada since 1945 and another 40,000 are to be admitted in the 12-month period ending next July.

Gullible Patients Urged to Beware Weird Array of "Cure-All" Gadgets

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (NANA).—The American public really gets gullible when it has a stomach ache.

Experts in this field gathered in the debunking laboratories of the National Food and Drug Administration recently and regarded a mounting stack of gadgets which have been sold as panaceas for plagues of the human race.

The public has been buying them as a cure for everything from falling hair to hemophilia.

Successful sales of some of them apparently depend on how many ailments the inventor can list as curable through use of his contraption — and those claims are the basis of seizure and prosecution by the Food and Drug Administration.

DELUGE SINCE WAR

"There has been a deluge of them since the war," says George P. Larrick, associate commissioner of the administration. "They are presenting a regulatory problem comparable to that which patent medicines caused 40 years ago."

Reasons for the increasing number of the phony cure-all devices are at least threefold, according to Larrick.

1. Availability of more metal and more manpower since the war.

2. Great advances in legitimate physical medicine devices, which have conditioned the public to believe almost any new "miracle."

3. New regulations, which gave the Administration jurisdiction over such mechanical gadgets beginning in 1939. Preparation for war and then war itself delayed their production.

Officials can even laugh over the fantastic claims made for some of the inventions, but it is a rueful grin at best.

SOME DANGEROUS

"Some are actually dangerous," says Doctor Irvin Kerlan, medical officer in charge of therapeutic devices.

"High on the list of gadgets we seek out is that which claims a cure for a serious disease, particularly that disease which grows progressively worse while the patient tinkers with the new miracle machine."

One of the newest devices and still under litigation in the Midwest is a dumbbell-appearing creation in which the centre bar is supposed to be filled with water which has been exposed to cosmic rays.

"So has everything else in the world," snorted Dr. Horatio Wales, another of the Administration's experts.

By merely holding the dumbbell, the patient is supposed to absorb the latent energy and acquire a resistance to diseases and ailments. The cost is between $50 and $100.

Vibrators and reducing machines are prominent and numerous in the Administration's seizures—the majority being as worthless as last month's streetcar pass.

NO EASY WAY

"As far as the Food and Drug Administration knows, there is no easy way to get skinny," Larrick grinned.

In another case recently prosecuted, a frustrated electrician wore a zinc plate in one shoe and a copper plate in another; claimed an electric current would "produce health and vigor, relieve the stiffness of old age ... be efficacious in the mitigation" of headache, asthma, cold hands and feet and kidney trouble.

It also would cure high and low blood pressure, the inventor said. He was fined $1,000 and given a suspended sentence.

One of the prize screwball contrivances in the Administration's collection is the "mysterious" spectro-chrome, brain-child of a man eventually fined $20,000. In appearance it was a cross between a slot machine and a hot-peanut vending machine.

"The more mysterious they make it, the more people believe it," observed Dr. Wales.

The spectro-chrome, which went to anyone having $90 with which to join the "institute," also carried an esoteric encyclopedia. Its efficacy depended on the patient's latitude and longitude, whether his head was pointed toward the North and "considerable other gibberish," Larrick said.

Dismantled, the machine contained a 1,000-watt light bulb, a fan to cool it, a bottle of water and several colored slides.

Its claims: effective treatment of the "heart, lungs, skin, nutrition, mentality and emotions, swelling, fever, dog bite, appendicitis, gout, hiccoughs, cancerous growth and nosebleed," to name a few. In all, the claims occupied 32 lines of fine type in the Administration's notices of judgment.

The fact that the gadget has "Patent pending" stamped on it is no assurance that its claims are true, Dr. Kerlan warned. The patent is granted only on what the inventor claims.

This circumstance actually helps in some phases of enforcement.

"The big producers come out with something; then the imitators follow. We nab the big operators and the little ones just fold up," Larrick said.

Even easier was the litigation over a machine which its inventor claimed would cure arthritis.

"The inventor had arthritis so bad he came into court in a wheelchair," one of the experts said.

Divorce Rate Falls in Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 4 (CP).—Canada's divorce rate, pushed to an all-time high in 1947 when many wartime marriages hit the skids, appears headed for another drop this year.

A parliamentary official said today that the downward trend is indicated by a drop in the number of divorce applications from Quebec, the only province without a divorce court.

So far, 223 Quebec residents have applied to Parliament for divorces during the session opening January 26. At the last session 292 divorces were granted, and in the previous record year 348 marriages were dissolved.

The 1948 figures for all Canada will not be available for another couple of months, but early estimates indicate that the rate will be below the 1947 record of 8,193.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (NANA).—Howard Hughes' giant flying cargo boat, which is costing the Government $20,000,000, has been undergoing repairs at its graving dock in Los Angeles Harbor.

The Reconstruction Finance Corporation said today it had been informed that minor repairs have delayed further flight tests which were scheduled to be resumed after November 15.

The Government's agency has agreed to advance $1,000,000 to complete flight tests before the giant seaplane is turned over to the Government. It already has advanced more than $19,000,000 toward its construction.

R.F.C. officials say they expected a full report on the progress of the mammoth boat's construction from their representatives on the West Coast in the next ten days.

Your Health and Your Weight

CURES FOR OVERWEIGHT MAY CONTAIN DRUGS

When you see advertised a method of reducing weight in which there is no reduction in food needed or any exercise to be taken, you wonder just what the "catch" can be as your common sense tells you that there can be no reduction in weight unless there is a reduction in the food intake.

You may wonder if the "medicine" to be used contains dinitrophenol which heats up the body just as does exercise but is not prescribed often because of the number of deaths it caused in individuals allergic to dinitrophenol.

Another drug used successfully is amphetamine sulfate with the trade name of Benzedrine Sulfate. This has a double action, as it decreases the appetite, and increases the desire to take exercise—work or play. This drug also is used in treating alcoholism, as it takes away the desire for alcohol and gives the alcoholic a "boost" just when he needs it most. This drug must be prescribed by a physician and its reaction noted so that the physician can prescribe the correct dosage to use in each case. Benzedrine Sulfate also heats up the body and helps burn or use excess fat, which makes it helpful in reducing weight in cases where its effects are being supervised by a physician.

Another drug—which is really a gland extract—used in reducing weight is thyroid extract, manufactured by the thyroid gland in the neck. The thyroid is the "key" gland of the body which, if manufacturing the right amount of juice or extract, regulates or sets the speed at which the other body processes do their work.

When not enough thyroid juice is being made for the body's needs, these processes do not work fast enough and excess fat accumulates in and on the body. It is in these cases, where overweight is due to lack of thyroid juice, that the physician prescribes thyroid extract and obtains a satisfactory loss of weight in the patient.

In addition to excess weight, the skin becomes dry, wrinkled, with a wax-like color. In addition to causing a loss of weight, thyroid extract brightens the mind and stimulates the desire for exercise or work. Any lack of thyroid juice in the body is found by the metabolism test, which shows the rate at which the body processes are working. If too much thyroid juice is being made, rest is the treatment; and in severe cases an operation or X-ray treatment is the method used to remove the gland.

What is the effect of using a "reducing" remedy containing thyroid extract in one whose overweight is not due to lack of thyroid juice in the body?

Thyroid extract, given in cases where overweight is not due to lack of thyroid juice, has caused cases of severe form of goitre and several deaths, as reported by the Lahey Clinic, Boston.

The lesson regarding thyroid extract and overweight is that where an individual has reduced his starches, fats and liquids by one-half and sees practically no loss of weight at the end of one month, he should consult his or her family physician, who will arrange for a metabolism test. It is not expensive.

It should, however, never be forgotten that in all cases of overweight—whether or not it is due to lack of thyroid juice in the blood—cutting down on the food intake, particularly starches, fats and liquids, is always necessary to get complete results. No matter what is causing the overweight, more food is being eaten than is needed.

Your Size and Work Determine Food Needs

By DR. J. B. WARREN

The food needs of an individual depend upon the work done by his body processes especially his muscles. A second point is the size of the individual. The larger the body, the greater is the skin surface by means of which heat is lost from the body. That is why a girl or boy with almost as much skin surface as their parents need almost as much food. Because they need extra food for growing they often eat as much as their parents.
